U.S. Gold Supply Hits New Peak; Stocks Soaring

Inflow Called Proof That Europe Believes in Recovery Here.

Kennedy's Report Cheers President

Almost Four Million Shares Change Hands in New York.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Enthusiastic over the improvement in economic conditions in this country, as they appeared to him from the vantage point of Europe, Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, yesterday gave President Roosevelt a detailed report on the industrial and financial situation abroad.

Mr. Kennedy found that economic recovery here, he told the President, was definitely in advance of that abroad and contended that the proof of this was the heavy inflow of gold from Europe, seeking investment in the United States. This, he held, was a practical demonstration of European confidence in the soundness of American recovery.

Not Unmixed Blessing.

Even as he spoke the Federal Reserve Board reported that this country's gold stock had increased $33,000,000 in the last week, bringing it to a new high record of $9,747,000,000, or an increase of $1,717,000,000 in the last year. Cables from Europe, furthermore, reported that the flow of gold here has not abated but that ships leaving for America were carrying heavy shipments of the yellow metal from England and France.

Although this movement of gold to the United States is flattering recognition of the country's recovery gains, Mr. Kennedy did not think it was entirely a blessing. Terming the gold "nervous money"—money leaving Europe because of anxiety over conditions there—the former SEC chief saw the possibility that it may create difficulties in the future for the American economic system.

But for the immediate present, Mr. Kennedy saw no clouds on the horizon. Indeed, he said that the New York stock market, which yesterday experienced an activity unknown to it for two years, was "gayer than in 1928 or 1929." He attributed some of this activity to the flow of gold here from abroad.

No Stabilization Now.

The stock market yesterday had a turnover of only slightly less than 4,000,000 shares, an activity that cheered brokers and commission houses into believing that perhaps the "good old days" might again be realized. Prices generally moved forward, with many stocks gaining as much as 4 points to achieve new highs for the last four years. The bullish movement spread into bonds—some registering 8-point advances, grains and cotton.

All of which sustained the diagnosis given earlier in the day to the President by Mr. Kennedy. The latter, without the fact becoming known, arrived at the White House Wednesday evening and spent the

Soldiers Rout Mob With Gas

Butts of Rifles Break Up Riot; Attempt Made to Lynch Prisoner.

By the United Press.

Moultrie, Ga., Nov. 14.—Two companies of Georgia National Guardsmen used tear gas and rifle butts today to disperse a howling mob seeking to take a condemned Negro from sheriff's deputies.

Under protection of National Guard bayonets, the Negro, John Henry Sloan, 21, was rushed to the State penitentiary at Milledgeville where he must die in the electric chair December 10.

Two persons were beaten by gun buts and a third cut by a bayonet as the guardsmen repulsed a rush of a mob of over 2,000 enraged south Georgians.

Sloan was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murder of Otis Gay, young white man, and the wounding of his young woman companion, Mary Lou Smith. Sentence was passed in a courtroom tense with indignation under the armed protection of the two National Guard companies.

Sanctions Approved.

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 14 (AP).—The House of Representatives today adopted the bills imposing sanctions against Italy.

Vote in England Hints a Victory By Government

Ramsey MacDonald's Foes Say His London Trip Means Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 14.—The British national government held its ground in scattered early returns from the general elections tonight, with majorities reduced to about one-half of those it won four years ago.

Standing of the parties at 10:45 p. m. showed 31 government seats to 13 for the Labor opposition, with 571 out of 615 seats to be reported.

Wallace Returned

Departure of Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister, from his Seaham constituency before the votes were counted brought Laborite predictions he had conceded defeat.

MacDonald, however, said he had work to do in London and would await announcement of the Seaham result there tomorrow. The present lord president of the council was frequently assailed during his campaign as a "traitor" to the Labor cause.

Labor made its first gain in Burnley, stronghold of the late Arthur Henderson. There W. A. Burke defeated Vice Admiral Gordon Campbell, Liberal National, by a safe majority.

The first government officeholder to be returned was Capt. Euan Wallace, undersecretary of the home office, from Hornsey. He had a con-

New Freedom Is Proclaimed In Philippines

Proclamation Is Signed by President, Setting Up Commonwealth.

Islands to Get Message Today; Independence in 10 Years.

By the Associated Press.

With a figurative "God bless you," President Roosevelt yesterday signed a proclamation establishing a commonwealth government in the Philippine Islands preparatory to complete independence ten years hence for 14,000,000 Asiatic people.

The proclamation will be read by Secretary Dern in Manila, 10,000 miles across the Pacific. This ceremony, scheduled for 7 o'clock last night (Eastern standard time), will take place in Manila at 8 o'clock this morning and launch officially the island's constitutional government.

Present also in the Philippines for this semifinal step toward freedom, sought by Filipinos since Admiral Dewey captured Manila in 1898, were Vice President Garner, Manuel L. Quezon, President-elect of the commonwealth, and fellow officials; Frank Murphy, of Detroit, former Governor General and now American high commissioner to the commonwealth; Speaker Joseph T. Byrns and nearly 50 Senators and Representatives.

Ceremony Here Brief.

A small group of officials including Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the Army, witnessed Mr. Roosevelt's signing of the proclamation at a brief ceremony in the executive offices of the White House. The proclamation creates the new government in accordance with the Tydings-McDuffie independence law enacted in March, 1934. It will effect complete independence from the United States a decade hence, unless the law is changed.

After certifying the September 17 election in the Philippines, which swept Quezon into office by overwhelming majorities, the President's proclamation said:

Effective Tomorrow.

"This proclamation shall be effective upon its promulgation at Manila, Philippine Islands, on November 15, 1935, by the Secretary of War of the United States, who is hereby designated as my representative for that purpose.

"And I do further announce and proclaim that, in accordance with the provisions of the (independence) act, the existing Philippine government shall enter upon its rights, privileges, powers and duties as provided upon the said constitution of the Commonwealth of the Philippines.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed."

Daughter of Curie Wins Nobel Prize

English Professor Gets Award in Physics.

By the Associated Press.

Stockholm, Nov. 14.—The Nobel prize in chemistry was awarded today to Prof. Frederick Joliot, of France, and his wife, Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie, a daughter of the late Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium.

Prof. James Chadwick, 44-year-old English professor, who has been engaged in exhaustive research on the construction of the atom, was awarded today the Nobel prize in physics.

The winner of the distinguished award is a professor at Cambridge University, where he had worked with Lord Rutherford, winner of the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1908.

Prof. Chadwick by his research on beryllium radiation is credited with having secured the first experimental evidence of the existence of the neutron.

The Swedish Academy announced it has decided to reserve the Nobel prize for literature; thus it will be held over for award next year or later.

15 Win $828 Daily Double On Closing Day at Pimlico

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 14. Chief excitement of the closing-day program at this historic race track involved an $828.60 mutel paid by the daily double. The pay-off was the second largest since the twin wager was installed as a betting feature in Maryland and the largest ever paid at this track. Fifteen persons, ranging from a young girl who said, "Don't put my name in the paper," to an old man, with a patch in the elbow of an old topcoat, were smiling as they collected the small fortune.

The horses that combined to produce the telephone numbers were Canpra, an $89 shot in the first race, and Ramus, a $7.10 proposition in the third race. Between the first and third races many in the crowd were building air castles due to the large numbers displayed beside all of the entries in the deciding event.

Among the "If-they-win" mutuels were: Fogarty, $428.60; Capablanca, $1,035.80; Abstain, $1,381.10; Hot Griddle, $828.60; Slave, $956.10; Pencader, $690.50, and Fair Billy, $956.10. Thus high hopes for many turned into dismal dismay.

At least four of those who collected came by their good fortune through betting every horse in the first race in combinations ending in Ramus. Others were playing a "Number system," and still others "Just didn't know how" they ar-

Friends of Bride Sought by Police In Loring Inquiry

Lieut. Joseph Itzel, of Baltimore, leaving Loring home after investigation yesterday.

Former Employer of Girl Gives Name of Ex-Suitor; Edith Tavenner to Appear; Family 'Out of Picture,' Itzel Declares.

Starting afresh, investigators in the Corinna Loring mystery last night planned a round-up of all the men who knew the murdered stenographer.

Hubert C. Hoover, electrical engineer, who for two years employed Corinna on a part-time basis, appeared at the inquiry headquarters in Upper Marlboro late yesterday and gave Lieut. Detective Joseph H. Itzel the name of a former suitor.

Corinna had once told fellow workers, Hoover said, that if this man called at the office to tell him she was out. Hoover emphasized, however, that all this was 18 months ago.

A former employe of St. Elizabeths Hospital was notified late yesterday that the investigators would like to talk to him in Upper Marlboro. His connection with the case was not revealed.

Miss Tavenner to Appear.

Meanwhile word reached headquarters that Miss Edith Tavenner, described as a former "girl friend" of Richard Tear, fiance of the murdered stenographer, would visit Upper Marlboro with her lawyer.

For three hours yesterday, Lieut. Itzel and State's Attorney Alan Bowie talked to Mrs. George Loring, mother of Corinna. It was the first time they had talked to her since the girl's beaten and strangled body was found last Saturday afternoon, five days after her disappearance from home.

Emerging from the Loring bungalow, Itzel said:

"The family is completely out of the picture."

Mother Is Questioned.

Later Mrs. Loring answered questions of reporters and told them she had no idea who might have killed her daughter.

Lieut. Itzel, back at Upper Marlboro, announced no arrests are contemplated at this time. The investigation so far, he added, has not focused on any particular motive or person.

"We are not up against a stone wall by any means," he said. "You might say we are making progress. This isn't the toughest case I have ever had. The Brady case, I believe, was a much harder nut to crack."

He was referring to the celebrated bomb murder in Seat Pleasant, Md., on New Year's Day of 1930. Naomi Hall Brady received what looked like a Christmas box. When she started to open it she and a brother and sister were literally blown apart.

Itzel, after a long investigation, pinned the crime on Lawrence Leroy Brady, brother of Herman Brady, husband of the murdered girl. Lawrence thought Herman had married "beneath him."

Theory Advanced on Crime.

Robert W. Hicks, Washington criminologist who is assisting in the Loring investigation, said yesterday that Corinna apparently was attacked while in an upright position.

This was indicated, he said, by the fact that the blood found on her coat lapels had flowed downward from the cuts on her face.

Hicks announced he had made a blood classification which might

Bride's Mother Writes Replies To Reporters

Says She Is Satisfied With Investigation; Offers No Theories.

Mrs. George A. Loring, mother of Corinna Loring, murdered bride-to-be, yesterday afternoon broke the long silence she has maintained since her daughter disappeared on the fateful night of November 4.

During the search for Corinna, and in the days that followed discovery of her body on desolate Saddleback Ridge, Mrs. Loring steadfastly refused to talk with reporters.

Only members of the family, a few close friends, and the pastor of the Mount Rainier Methodist Church were admitted to the Loring home before yesterday.

Then, shortly after 4 p. m. reporters were made welcome on the front porch of the prim white Loring bungalow at 3110 Beech street by the father of the dead girl and by her brother-in-law, Leo LoJacono.

Mrs. Loring refused to come out. She refused to let anyone inside. But she did consent to answer a few questions. And so, by proxy, she held a press conference.

Written questions were carried in to her by LoJacono. It took her almost an hour to complete the answers; answers that were disappointingly brief and non-committal. They revealed she has no idea as to who killed Corinna, that she is satisfied with the way the inventigation into the murder is being handled, and that she had not opposed her daughter's marriage to Richard Tear, the dead girl's fiance.

The questions asked Mrs. Loring and her answers, verbatim, were:

Q.—Have you any ideas as to who may have killed your daughter?

A.—No.

Q.—Had Corinna ever intimated she feared anybody?

A.—No.

Q.—Do you believe Corinna left home that night with a friend?

A.—Evidently with someone she trusted.

Q.—Did she ever say she did not want to marry Richard Tear? Did you object to the marriage?

A.—No, she never said that. No.

Q.—Have you any idea she might have been in possession of information damaging to some

Ickes to Seek Inquiry Into Steel Awards

Collusion in Morehead City Piling Offers Is Intimated.

Announces New Policy to Test Foreigners' PWA Proposals.

By Felix Bruner.

A Federal Trade Commission investigation of alleged collusive bidding by American steel manufacturers, and a new policy designed to prevent "dumping" of foreign building materials were Secretary Ickes' answers yesterday to complaints that German steel is going into at least two PWA projects.

Ickes explained his stand in a letter to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and in an oral statement at his press conference. The letter to Green was in reply to the labor leader's complaint that a contract had been awarded for German steel piling to be used in construction of the Tri-Borough bridge in New York.

While the PWA administrator has complained repeatedly of alleged collusive bidding on both steel and concrete contracts for PWA projects, his reference of the steel bids to the Federal Trade Commission was the first indication that punitive action might be contemplated.

"Looks Like Collusion."

The immediate situation involving alleged collusion concerns bids on piling for the Morehead City ocean terminal project in North Carolina, where a contract has been awarded for steel made in Germany. Ickes charged that identical bids had been submitted by the Carnegie Steel Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation; the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Inland Steel Co.

"It looks to me like collusion," Ickes said.

While insisting that he questioned the authority of the Government to prohibit use of foreign materials on private construction jobs, although they are partly financed with PWA funds, Ickes said he believed his letter to Green "shows on its face that every effort will be made to protect the legitimate interests of American manufacturers, but we are not interested in protecting collusive bidding or violation of our own laws."

In his letter to Green, the Secretary said:

"PWA is changing its regulations so as to provide that no foreign materials may be purchased for Federal or non-Federal projects unless approval is first obtained from the Administrator of Public Works, instead of allowing purchases to be made directly by contractors or subcontractors.

To Test Proposals.

"I intend, if any bids lower than American are received from foreign producers, to determine two important questions before making any decision:

"The first question that will have to be answered is: Is the foreign bid lower than the American bid either because of foreign government subsidy or by foreign exchange regulations which must be considered unfair to the American producer? Full investigation will be made in such case by the proper governmental authorities.

"Second: If the foreign bid is lower than the American bid, we shall ask this question: Are the American bid or bids collusive, or are the American bid or bids so unreasonably high as to justify the belief that advantage is being taken of the Government in administering its relief funds?"

Ickes continued by referring to the four Morehead bids being identical and added that "this fact alone

Pontiff Is Confident of Results Despite Brief Period Remaining.

Sanctionists to Go In Action Monday

Mussolini Awaits Reply From Each Nation Before Proceeding.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 14.—Earnest efforts by Pope Pius to obtain postponement of sanctions in the interest of world peace became known today, four days before both the League of Nations and Benito Mussolini are scheduled to raise their economic drawbridges.

But, despite the pontiff's hope that 51 world powers will delay their economic boycott of Italy because the Fascist state has made war on Ethiopia, sanctions generally were expected to become effective next Monday.

And, as each country closes its commercial gates, Il Duce will reply with a like barrier. If a nation enforces sanctions only lightly, Italy will respond in the same measure.

Confident of Results.

Ecclesiastical circles said the pontiff was fully cognizant of the brief period of time remaining before application of the League's sweeping measures, designed to cut short the African war. Nevertheless, he was confident something might be done. He has influential agents in many nations. In France, particularly, the papal nuncio has become active in presenting Vatican views to Premier Pierre Laval.

Furthermore, the Pope was said to feel that postponement of sanctions not only would avert world economic disorder, but would increase prospects for settling the war through collapse of Ethiopian resistance.

Whatever may come of the pontiff's efforts and the many comings and goings of lay ambassadors, there was more and more talk of an eventual arrangement.

Many counted on a big drive in Ethiopia to disrupt Emperor Haile Selassie's defenses and enable Italy to solve the territorial problem by taking what she wants.

Awaits Individual Replies.

As for sanctions, a government spokesman said Mussolini expected to receive an individual reply from each of the nations to which he dispatched his protests earlier this week.

He wants to know just what each country expects to do in the way of anti-Italian measures before deciding on the precise defensive move he will take against it.

Nevertheless, the "buy Italian" motto was preached at home as a necessity and a virtue.

Today the nation's light and heat saving campaign abolished the age-old siesta for hundreds of thousands of Italians. A new working schedule of from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., with only half an hour for lunch, went into effect in public offices, and Fascist leaders begain a campaign to extend it to private industry.

Egypt Premier Blames British; 3 Dead in Riots

Nessim Rejects New Constitution; English Officer Among Injured.

By the United Press.

Cairo, Nov. 14.—Anti-British unrest was intensified tonight by a statement of Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha blaming the British government for Egypt's political plight.

Rioting by striking university students continued with one more killed and nine seriously wounded. Police fired into a student mob charging across the Abbas Bridge over the Nile. Three were killed yesterday—one by gunfire and one in the collapse of a stairway at a protest meeting, and the third as the result of injuries.

Egyptian nationalists have capitalized Britain's preoccupation with the Italo-Ethiopian situation to strike for freedom from the "English yoke" under the 1923 constitution. The constitution, which established a liberal monarchy under King Fuad, with British advisers, was suspended in 1928.

Nessim said the British high commissioner, Sir Miles Lampson, had proposed drawing up a new constitution approved by all parties. He refused, he said, because he already has signified his desire to return to the 1923 constitution.

The premier said he submitted his demand for return to the 1923 constitution but has received no reply from London other than Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare's recent speech at Guild Hall, "which we are obliged to consider Britain's reply." Sir Samuel indicated Britain does not wish to take advantage of the Italo-Ethiopian and resulting

Court Upholds Guffey Coal Act

Rules U. S. Can Set Prices, Pay if Interstate Trade Is Involved.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 14.—Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton tonight held the Guffey coal act constitutional. He declared that Congress has power to regulate wages and prices of any industry which Congress may conclude bears on interstate commerce and pronounced the courts powerless to review such a conclusion, if any facts support it.

Federal authority under the Constitution's interstate commerce and general welfare clauses, as expounded by Judge Hamilton, would sustain legislation whenever the States failed or were helpless to act.

"The people of the States intended to surrender all the rights they had to promote the general welfare that could not be done by the States acting independently," he said.

Case Attacking Guffey Coal Act Nears Ruling

By the Associated Press.

James Walter Carter's attack on constitutionality of the Guffey coal act neared a ruling in the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday as the Government completed its defense of the law.

The coal operator's petition for an injunction to restrain collection of taxes on coal under the new legislation probably will be given to Justice Jesse C. Adkins for decision next week. Attorneys for Carter, who operates mines in McDowell County, W. Va., and Tazewell County, Va., wound up rebuttal evidence yesterday.

Tech High Defeats Western; Crimmins Leads Scoring, 24-0

By John R. Vosburgh.

Tech High, thrust virtually out of the interhigh race by Central last week, vented its wrath on a punchless Western eleven yesterday to win a 24-to-0 victory at Central Stadium. Some 2,000 spectators watched Francis Crimmins rip through and around the Georgetowners to lead the Tech scoring raids with two touchdowns.

Deprived of its triple-threat quarterback, Johnny Hatch, Western was reduced merely to a defensive team. Without the passing, punting and running of Hatch, who is confined to his home with a knee injury, Western was never able to launch an offensive and at no time came closer than 50 yards to the Tech goal line.

After fighting off a Tech invasion to the Western 1-yard line in the first quarter, the Georgetowners found themselves facing the inevitable touchdown early in the next period when Charlie Wells fumbled. King, of Tech, recovering on the Western 35. On four ball-carrying plays in a row, Crimmins went over for the touchdown. He literally crashed his way for 8 yards on the first play, then again for 1, again for 6 and then tore through left tackle for the touchdown on a 20-yard run shaking off Western tacklers on the sheer power of his drive.

Western, which had been displaying a creditable defensive game throughout the first half with this lone exception, was more or less demoralized on the first play of the

Panic-Stricken Chinese Fear Tokyo Attack

Thousands of Families Flee Into Shaghai's Foreign Quarter.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, (Friday), Nov. 15.—Thousands of Chinese families, panic stricken at rumors of an imminent Japanese attack on native sections of Shanghai, fled today into the foreign controlled area of the city.

Tension has been high since a Japanese marine was slain on a street last Saturday night and almost 2,000 Japanese marines were landed.

Japanese authorities emphatically denied they intended to take over the city, but admitted that the public nervousness contributed to a dangerous situation there.

A dispatch from Peiping said a band of irregulars, identifying itself as the "Hopei independence army," had entered the demilitarized zon of north China and looted two cities, thus disrupting a recently peaceful situation.

The army was said too be meeting with resistance.

The inrush of Chinese to the foreign settlement here saw jinrikishas, carts, van and taxis loaded to overflowing and cloggging main roads. Estimates of the number of refugees from the Chapei quarter were from 50,000 to 100,000.

Thousands had already entered foreign zones after the Japanese marines marched into the Hongkew section following upon the slaying Saturday night.

Vice Admiral Hyakutake, commander of the Japanese fleet in China waters, was expected to arrive today aboard the cruiser Kuma.

A dispatch from Nanking, seat of the national government, said the Japanese embassy had warned Chinese authorities to carry out more thoroughly their pledges to suppress anti-Japanese activities.

Breach of Mandates.

Recent Shanghai incidents, a Japanese official told Tang Yujen, vice foreign minister, must be concidered a clear breach of the Chinese government's mandates suppressing anti-Japanese organizations.

(Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, Chinese military leader and commander of the famous nineteenth army in Shanghai in 1932, in Hongkong published an offer to serve the Nanking government if a stronger anti-Japanese attitude is adopted.

(Last spring Gen. Tsai accused Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese government, of being "pro-Japanese.")

Adams left home after breakfast and went to the garage to go to work, his wife said. A short time later, Philip K. A pulmotor was used in an effort to revive him.

Between You and Me

Agitation Over the German Steel Purchase; Campaign Fodder; Hoover's Mail.

By Raymond Clapper

HYSTERIA over two small contracts for German steel on PWA projects is a dangerous thing for the Administration at this particular time because it creates an extremely unfavorable atmosphere for ushering in the new Canadian reciprocity agreement.

This agreement with the second best customer of the United States is one of the most important attempts that has been made to pull our foreign trade out of the ditch. The principle of this agreement, which is to be signed today, is that we will let in certain Canadian products in return for which Canada will take some of ours and that out of the exchange both countries will benefit.

The $19,000 worth of Nazi steel which was bought for the New York Triborough Bridge has set loose an anti-foreign agitation which may reach far beyond this immediate matter. Our own continued heavy unemployment does not put us in any receptive mood for foreign goods, and special groups directly affected by importations combine forces to add to the hostile clamor. It would be surprising if the feeling generated over the German steel incident does not transfer itself promptly into a general attack on the Administration's reciprocal trade policy.

Popular opposition which was stirred up against an earlier attempt to establish Canadian reciprocity had much to do with wrecking the Taft Administration. Unquestionably, Republicans, looking for a real 1936 issue with fire in it, will be tempted to play upon resentment aroused by the Canadian agreement.

The setting is perfect for a campaign against foreign trade. Of course, it wouldn't be proclaimed as a campaign against foreign trade. It would be an attack on the Administration for letting foreign goods come into the country in competition with domestic products. But there can be no revival of exports unless there is a revival of imports. The Administration's reciprocal trade policy will be a hard one to defend because so few people stop to think that a nation cannot sell abroad without buying abroad. Politicians and special groups cry that we are letting the foreigner sell his goods in this country and it becomes a patriotic issue, to roll wild through the presidential campaign with the random destructiveness of a loose cannon on a pitching deck.

Trade with Canada has dropped to a third of what is was a few years ago. Because Canada is our second largest customer, the importance of reviving this commerce is obvious.

Experience with reciprocal trade agreements is too brief to afford any conclusive evidence as to whether the Canadian agreement will fulfill the Administration's hopes. The State Department attaches some significance to the brief experience with Sweden since August 5, when the Swedish reciprocal trade agreement went into effect.

Incomplete figures reported to the State Department indicate that since this agreement became effective, American exports to Sweden have increased greatly. Pork sales doubled. Fresh, canned and dried fruits are being shipped in quantities many times larger than those of a year ago. Automobiles and parts are moving in larger quantity. Increases were said to have taken place also in exports of American canned soups, gasoline, office equipment and some other lines.

In return Swedish exports to the United States have increased by approximately the same amount as the eastbound trade, the increase being accounted for largely by pulp and newsprint.

Under the Cuman trade agreement, in effect now for almost a year, American exports have gone sharply and imports have similarly increased.

Even in the German steel deal, there is a tendency to overlook the fact that price obtained by the Germans will be left here, to be used either for buying American cotton or paying off obligations.

Similarly, during all of the outcry over importation of Japanese textiles, it was was overlooked that Japan was a heavy buyer of American raw cotton and that Japan buys more from us than we do from Japan.

Herbert Hoover's mail is changing. A few months ago about half of the letters he received were from writers who urged him not to run for President again and subject himself to the punishment of another campaign. Now, so some of his friends estimate, 95 per cent of the letters urge him to get into the 1936 fight. The change became most striking following the recent Oakland, Calif., address which was a withering attack on Administration waste.

Mr. Hoover has several more speeches in mind, each of which will emphasize a particular issue. This series of major addresses, each nationally broadcast, is expected by Mr. Hoover's friends to serve as a Republican campaign textbook—whether Mr. Hoover is the candidate or not.

A Los Angeles real estate man is advocating a part-time White House in the Far West where the President would put in several months a year in official residence.

Mr. Hoover has a house adequate for the purpose at Palo Alto, Calif., and he doubtless would be willing to make terms. The only objection from the Administration's point of view might be that, undoubtedly, Mr. Hoover would insist upon being thrown in with the house.

Bone Is Sneezed Out; Sneezed Back Again

Pocatello, Idaho, Nov. 14 (AP).—William Brown, of Los Angeles, sneezed so hard while at work in a Pocatello CCC district camp that his shouider blade flew out of place.

He was brought to a hospital. An X-ray revealed setting of the bone would be painful. Brown was put on the operating table.

A nurse prepared the ether. A whiff of it struck Brown's nose. He let out a powerful "ca-choo." The shoulder blade snapped back into place.

Mediterranean crises to strengthen her grip on Egypt, but added:

"History and geography have linked together the fortunes of England and Egypt."

By blaming England, the premier temporarily is believed to have averted a break with the extremist wing of the Wafd Party but probably has thrown fuel on the nationalistic fires.

Universities Closed.

Universities were closed for a week to permit students to cool off. Bands of students, shouting anti-British slogans and carrying banners demanding return to the 1923 constitution, paraded through the streets.

Rumors spread swiftly in the excited city. One said the Wafd Party had decided on a nation-wide boycott of British goods. Such action would be virtually impossible due to the British influence. Reports of student casualties also were exaggerated.

A British officer named Lee was injured on the head when he was caught between police and a mob of students attempting to cross the Nile into Cairo from Chiza to demonstrate. The police opened fire and the students retreated, carrying off their wounded in taxicabs.

night there. He talked at some length with the President yesterday morning and then went over to the SEC to call on his former colleagues.

There he reported thta fiscal officers of England and France had agreed with him to register their security issues outstanding in this country as soon as possible with the SEC. He also gave a hand to the commission he helped organize by urging the country's public utilities to register with the SEC under the utilities act.

Mr. Kennedy revealed that he had talked prospects for currency stabilization with the English and French officials, but had not found the immediate outlook bright. The British took the view that recovery would have to make further advances befoer they could enter a stabilization undertaking. The French were struggling against pressure for devaluation of the franc, with many persons bitterly opposed to such action.

servative majority of more than 20,000.

As the polls closed on a day of heavy voting, there were predictions the government's majority might be reduced to 100 seats. But few doubted that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and his colleagues would retain clear-cut control of Commons.

Early Laborite defeats were at Exeter, where John Cripps, 22-year-old son of Sir Stafford Cripps, lost his first venture, and at Stockton-on-Tees, where Miss Susan Lawrence, Labor chairman in 1929, was beaten by Capt. M. H. MacMillan, Conservative.

In all, 225 divisions with 232 members were to be reported tonight, with 323 divisions due for announcement Friday and the remaining ten later.

Late Votes Awaited.

The first night's reports in the main were from borough constituencies where Labor expected to make its heaviest gains. The votes of rural divisions, generally counted Friday, may tell another story.

Women candidates did not fare so well in the early returns. Besides Miss Lawrence, the Laborite, Mrs. E. Pakenham, was beaten by Sir Walter Preston, government standard-bearer in Preston.

Capt. Wallace beat another woman Labor candidate, Mrs. M. Power.

The Burnley victory of Burke was considered somewhat significant. That division turned against Henderson in 1931.

In the first 15 results the Laborites had gained four seats, all from Conservatives. These bore out expectations that labor would gain many seats lost in 1931, with the government strength remaining to be revealed in Friday returns.

The two-day election celebrations began tonight, with thousands crowding restaurants and hotels. Streets were thronged with gay crowds awaiting the results, fraught with importance in relation to Britain's continental and world affairs.

BEARS THE MARK OF MERIT

Chest Is Behind Mark of 1934 With $734,641

May Need More Than Ten Days Remaining to Hit $2,277,000 Goal.

Despite a larger goal, Community Chest contributions yesterday lagged behind those of last year.

Gifts reported yesterday at a Willard Hotel luncheon of solicitors increased to $734,641, the total obtained in the first four days, or 39.12 per cent of the $1,877,900 basic goal.

In the same length of time a year ago, however, the canvasseers boasted a percentage of 45.3, while statisticians figured the day's work found the volunteers five percentage points behind the pace they must observe.

As a supplemental objective of $400,000, or 20 per cent additional, has been agreed on, leaders feared the drive would have to be extended beyond next Wednesday's ten-day limit.

Solicitors were encouraged to get across to the public the unprecedented task faced by the Chest due to withdrawal of Federal aid from direct relief.

Drive Leaders Hopeful.

In the face of all obstacles, Dr. William McClellan, good-natured general campaign chairman, commended the volunteers on their spirit and beamed:

"I'm still betting on this organization."

W. W. Everett, Woodward & Lothrop department store vice president, urged the workers to put forth all possible effort. He commended the Chest management on its businesslike methods of holding down overhead expenses.

"As a business man," he said, "the economy of the Chest's method appeals to me.

"Investigation of separate campaigns before the Chest was inaugurated shows costs as high as 25 cents out of each dollar for raising funds, while we know no more than 7 cents out of each dollar goes to this cost under the Chest's method.

"The Community Chest enables us to carry through all the year the Christmas spirit of giving. I believe in the Chest 100 per cent."

City Awakens to Need.

Washington, Everett said, has been awakened to the needs of the city's unfortunate and hungry by the Chest.

"Tell people," he added, "that it is 'your' Community Chest and not 'our' Community Chest, and that the Community Chest is really all of Washington.

"It is up to us and up to you to do what we can to take care of the work of these 65 agencies represented in the Chest."

McClellan read a message of encouragement from Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, governmental unit chairman last year, now visiting in Denver.

"Local Community Chest campaigns," he wired, "are being conducted with much vigor and enthusiasm all over the country at this time.

Spirit of Charity Grows.

"In my present extensive travel and observation of these campaigns I am more than ever convinced that the civic spirit, sense of responsibility and determination to help our less fortunate neighbors which has been demonstrated by the citizens of the District of Columbia, is not and can not be exceeded by any community in this country.

"I am proud of the result obtained last year. I hope you are exceeding it this year and I am disappointed that I can not be there to enjoy with you that great thrill and feeling of satisfaction when the advancing line of workers report the great army as over the top. My kindest regards. Good luck and best wishes to your entire command."

A rising vote of thanks was accorded to Marvin H. McIntyre, of the White House secretariat, as he presented to the organization most of a 1,250-pound cheese sent to the President by the National Cheese Institute. It will be distributed among Chest agencies.

Bigger Gifts Pile Up.

Division reports showed the special assignment unit, which solicits the wealthy, has made the best showing with 274 donations for $256,341 or 45.76 per cent of its quota.

The second hghest percentage, 41.92, was produced by the governmental unit, with 38,017 contributions totaling $283,806.

Next came the metropolitan unit with 4,629 subscriptions for $85,020 and a percentage of 36.90.

John Poole, group solicitations unit chairman, reported 10,620 pledges for $107,451 or 27.7 per cent.

The Capital unit turned in 337 gifts totaling $2,021. The unit's percentage advanced to 20.42.

Special mention was made of the Treasury Department, employes of which have donated $69,000, or 50 per cent of their quota and of Woodward & Lothrop employes, who have given $2,702 "and are still going strong."

'Rushing the Growler' Restored in Illinois

Chicago, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Illinois Liquor Commission issued an order today reinstating the pre-prohibition practice of "rushing the growler."

Formerly the State liquor law was interpreted as providing that all wine sold in bulk must be consumed on the premises where purchased. The new order provides the customer may bring his own container and take the beverage away with him.

Liquor commission officials indicated the ruling also would apply to beer.

Ace Detective Answers Questions in Girl's Murder person who might have killed her on that account?

A.—I do not think so.

Q.—How do you feel about the investigation?

A.—I feel it is in good hands.

Q.—Is there anything you care to say about the case?

A.—No.

She Is Improving.

When LoJacono returned to the waiting group on the front porch with the answers, he was joined by Corinna's father. Both said Mrs. Loring, who has been hysterical and on the verge of collapse ever since her daughter's cruel death, was greatly improved yesterday.

Said LoJacono:

"She feels much better since Detective Itzel told her today he knew no one in the family had anything to do with it."

"You must remember," he added, "she's been under a terrible strain. To have her daughter killed and then to lose her brother—well, I don't see how she's kept her right mind."

Young LoJacono, pale and tired, showed results of the stress under which the entire family has been living for the last 10 days. It was he who read the answers to the reporters' questions.

When he came to the one concerning the objection of either Mrs. Loring or Corinna to Richard Tear, the slain girl's father said:

Must Have Been in Hurry.

"Put that answer in italics. Be sure to put in italics."

LoJacono said the family still leans to the theory that Corinna was lured out of the Loring home the night she was murdered by someone who came to the front door and told her that her mother, sister, or Tear had met with an accident.

"She changed her dress, showing she intended to go out," said LoJacono. "She wouldn't have changed clothes in preparation for Richard's visit as some persons seem to believe. They knew each other too well for that. She had received him in a house dress before. No, she was hurrying to leave the house. The fact she didn't take time to put on the belt of the dress proves that."

Mrs. Dickenson Installed.

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 14.—Mrs. G. G. Dickenson was installed as president of the Shenandoah Garden Club at a meeting today at the home of Miss Rae Albert. She succeeds Mrs. Herbert Trotter.

enable him to determine whether Corinna was killed where she was found or elsewhere. He meant that if he could get a sample of the blood that was seen where the body was found he could compare it with the sample he has.

Failed to Save Grass.

It appeared yesterday that police failed to save the blood-soaked grass on which the body lay. Meanwhile souvenir hunters had uprooted every blade of it.

Dr. Oscar Lavine, who performed the autopsy, yesterday appealed to the souvenir hunters to surrender what grass they have—

Hicks said if there was a "death car" in the case and blood spots were found in it, he might be able to tell whether the blood was that of Corinna.

The criminologist now is at work examining the shoes Corinna wore when she was murdered.

"I hope to be able to determine whether the body was dragged, how far and in what position," he said. "This may throw some light on the scene of the murder."

Paper, Glove Clews.

Lieut. Itzel expressed the belief the two most valuable clews in the case are a piece of crumpled paper and a driving glove found near the body.

The paper bore what appeared to be three bloody fingerprints.

The glove, it is believed, was discarded by the killer when he strangled Corinna with a piece of wrapping cord. This cord also is regarded as a good clew.

constitutes at least some evidence of collusion."

"In both cases the American bids were so far above the German bids as to justify inquiry into their fairness."

Records of the PWA indicate that the American bids were 152 per cent of the German bids.

In acknowledging Green's complaint, Ickes said:

"Let me, first of all, tell you in no uncertain terms that it is not the intention, nor has it ever been the intention, of PWA to permit money voted by Congress for relief purposes to be used for the purchase of foreign materials on project construction."

Green had complained that the PWA appropriation was intended to put American unemployed to work and that purchase of foreign materials defeated this purpose.

"Many months ago," Ickes continued, "this subject came up. There was definite legal doubt as to the authority of the executive branch of the Government to forbid the use of foreign materials in the absence of direct legislation. During the discussion of the original NRA bill in the Senate, an amendment forbidding the use of foreign materials was offered but was not accepted."

Ickes then explained that a 15 per cent differential in favor of American-made materials had been established on all purchases in excess of $10,000, and that he believed the two instances cited were the only ones in which foreign materials had been purchased.

Hagerstown Frees Slaying Suspect

Burke Held Since June in Buchanan Case.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 14.—John "Red" Burke, 34-year-old Philadelphian who had been held here since last June in connection with the slaying of an aged rooming house proprietor, was released today on order of State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram.

Burke's case was considered by the grand jury of this term of court, Ingram said, and his release was ordered because of a lack of evidence. David L. Buchanan, the rooming house proprietor, was killed by a blow on the head.

Burke, a race track follower, was arrested at Charles Town, W. Va.

On Saturday morning everyone listens to a big Eastern game, and then in the afternoon goes to see the big local game . . . The Metro commissary on a Friday afternoon is the meeting place for writers and directors, who stroll in to discuss the games and make bets. One writer, when asked how he made out on last week's game, said: "I didn't win much. I had both teams." That's how they bet . . . and the winning college is always a movie producer's alma mater.

THE PROPERTY department men of any studio are unsung heroes of the business . . . At a moment's notice they can get a director any object, no matter how unusual, for the set . . . A property man will tell you that the most difficult thing to get is grapes, when they are out of season . . . One day on a set a birthday cake was needed immediately. The property man took a small drum, covered it with a soap lather, put on the necessary candles and served it for the scene . . . The assistant director didn't know it was a prop and wanted to serve it to the players after the scene.

• • • •

Nino Martini in "Here's to Romance," when recording a song, would sing only four bars of music, but he would repeat those four bars until he sang them perfectly. Then he would go on to the next four or five bars . . . Then the sound department patched these recordings together into the selection you heard on the screen . . . This is the method used by most singers in flickers and that is why you hear every note hit perfectly in a picture . . . Marlene Dietrich's colored maid, Jessmer, gets almost as much attention on a set as Marlene does . . . Alice Faye stayed home one night and read a book.

• • • •

AT a theater featuring revivals of favorite flickers I saw "The Front Page" . . . It is really remarkable how this picture has kept pace. It is still up-to-date . . . The dialogue is timely, and a line about Mussolini bristles more today than when the flicker was released . . . "The Front Page' could never be made today as I saw it on the screen. The censors would eliminate too many of the risque lines . . . But I haven't heard of a single person who was ruined because he or she saw "The Front Page" . . . have you?

• • • •

Myrna Loy likes to hold hands while watching a flicker—so wouldn't you like to go to a movie with Myrna Loy? . . . If you look at the credit slide before a picture starts, you may have noticed that the person who makes the screen adaptation gets top billing over the playwright who wrote the original play . . . Witness, "The Petrified Forest," in which Delmar Davis and Charles Kenyon will get screen credit over Robert E. Sherwood or, for that matter, any play when it comes to your theater as a movie . . . Gene Fowler's landlady is Marion Davies.

THE Marx flicker, "A Night at the Opera," according to Metro, cost nearly $1,000,000, not counting damage to the studio . . . About those $1,000,000,-flickers I often wonder where the studios get the money to make them . . . Can't make me believe that any producer actually puts in $1,000,000 on a picture—anyway, not his own money . . . No picture really costs that much in cash . . . It's mainly on paper with the various studio costs charged against it . . . Harold Arlen, who wrote the music for the Jolson flicker, sings the songs to Al . . . Then Jolson does the song for Arlen. It's swell entertainment, this rehearsal . . . Jolson owns a large piece of property in Beverly Hills, which is for sale . . . On it stands this sign: "This property belongs to Al Jolson. So what?"

TREASURE WITHOUT END

Millions of Gallons ready now—Millions of Gallons aging—
Millions of Gallons in the making—
Insure Seagram's Continuous Leadership

With most treasures—the more that is taken away—the less you have left.

But this is not true of the vast whiskey treasure held by the House of Seagram.

Seagram's treasure is being constantly replenished. Seagram's supply of fine whiskies remains steady and continuous. And here is the reason for it.

A Treasure Ready

Today the House of Seagram holds millions of gallons of rare whiskies—aged and ready for use. From these great stocks, Seagram brings you—now, without waiting—the very finest whiskies. And yet—despite Seagram's popularity—this treasure is not running low. The fully aged stocks are ample to meet the nation-wide demand for years to come.

A Treasure Aging

In addition, every week and every year—more and more Seagram Whiskies are "Coming of Age." Millions of gallons are now maturing in charred oak casks. Thousands upon thousands of gallons will be ready next month. Many thousands more, in the month after that. And every month, for years to come.

Nor is this all. There is still another Seagram treasure.

A Treasure in the Making

Every day in its huge American distilleries, Seagram is making whiskey and storing it away for "Time to Work its Wonders."

These are the elements that insure Seagram's continuous supply of aged whiskies—actually treasure without end.

The Tradition of Finer Whiskies

Through more than three generations, Seagram craftsmen have been discovering secrets of the blending and distilling arts which money could never buy. The whiskies held by the House of Seagram have been distilled according to this tradition—the tradition of finer taste that has made Seagram's America's favorite.

Confidence only Leadership can win

What does this vast, continuing treasure mean to you?

It means that you can buy with confidence where you see the Seagram name. It means that today, tomorrow and in future years you can "Say Seagram's" and be sure of whiskies that are finer—whiskies that taste better.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Reviewing Stand.

New York, Nov. 14.

THE papers missed the secret divorce proceedings of Baroness Meredith, and Helen Berrien of the Upper Montclair set . . . They were married July 28, 1932, at Cape May, N. J., and secretly divorced at Reno about five weeks ago . . . Reporters can locate her at Arthur Murray's dancing school, where she is one of the instructresses. Friends of Jeff Maehamer are alarmed at his continued absence . . . Did he and Pauline Moore elope some place and get spliced? . . . They haven't been seen for three weeks, though he was due on the Coast last month . . . Best-looking man-about-town is the Wall Streeter, Larry Doyle . . . Most unusual laugh on the Stem is that of George Marshall, the Washingtonian . . . it starts deep and then explodes in a treble . . . That blonde behind the green glasses at the Algonquin yesterday was a dead ringer for Adrienne Ames.

GRACE MOORE

Leo Spitz, new RKO president, is related to Governor Horner, of Illinois, a nephew, if memory serves me right . . . He's a great man for the job, with a background of 20 years in active show business . . . Chicago developed him . . . He was the attorney for Balaban & Katz . . . "The Fabulous Wilson Mizner" spoils the famous wit's greatest story . . . In the book, he is reported as saying to the doctor who visited him just before he died: "I guess this is the main event coming up" . . . That is wrong . . . In one of Stanley Ketchel's fights, Mizner ordered oxygen tanks brought to the ringside . . . When he was dying, the attending doctors wheeled oxygen tanks into his hospital room . . . Seeing the oxygen tanks, Wilson was reminded of the Ketchel incident and said weakly: "It's the main event, Doc, but I can't win" . . . The book forgets, too, Mizner's crack to the card-sharper who escaped from the Titanic by wrapping himself in a woman's fur coat . . . Broke, the coward appealed to Mizner for a handout. "I can't help you," said Wilson grimly, "you died on the Titanic, and I understand that you died—game."

• • • •

Lily Pons, Grace Moore and Gladys Swarthout are three grand opera divas who measure up to any of the flicker beauties . . . Too bad that Geraldine Farrar arrived too soon . . . She would have been a great screen bet, for she had what it takes . . . Farrar and Caruso still hold Met attendance records, the greatest box office combine that ever jammed Thirty-ninth street . . . Picture success of Jane Froman is interesting . . . Broadway stages turned down this grand voice because she stuttered . . . The movies conquered the difficulty . . . Of the newcomers to the New York stage, most interesting in the feminine division is Margaret Rawlings, in "Parnell" . . . No actress apart from Katharine Cornell equals her lush femininity . . . At least, not since Diana Wynyard, the Londoner, came to town and made the critics sit up and take appreciative notice.

Rainbow effect on Broadway: Cleo Black, George White, Billy Rose, Ben Blue, Abner Silver, Rex Cole, Jack Pearl and Sol Gold . . . I met them between Forty-second street and Fifty-first street, so help me . . . Charlie Morrison will manage the Ritz Brothers, with a London deal in the offing . . . What ever became of Max Baer? . . . Italian Consul at St. Louis has notified M.-G.-M. that one scene of Garbo's "Anna Karenina" must be scissored . . . The scene in Venice, where La Garbo and Fredric March are pictured tossing coins to Italian youngsters turning cartwheels along the canal, is offensive to Mussolini's aids . . . They resent any suggestion of Italian beggary . . . Park avenue apartments that had to withdraw their canopies are restoring them . . . I like Nancy Randolph's description of a phony: "He was a great guy when he had it, but since I've known him, he never had it."

• • • •

Kay Francis, in "I Found Stella Parrish," is quite the most alluring femme to come to the screen in a long time . . . Even though you shudder when she puts on those specs and that fright wig . . . If that's a disguise, I'll take vanilla . . . Best-dressed screen sirens, recently, have been Claudette Colbert, very easy to look at in "She Married Her Boss" . . . And Joan Crawford, topping 'em all in "I Lived My Life" . . . Franchot Tone in "Mutiny on the Bounty," however, is no clothes horse . . . Patsy Kelly is ailing. Aside to Lee Tracy: Thanks and best of luck, keed!

• • • •

Pat Rooney is the most interesting of veterans of the stage . . . He and his wife, the former Marion Bent, assemble the aristocracy of the troupers each night at the Rooney kitchen uptown for a cold buffet and beer . . . They sit there until early in the morning, talking of the good old days that have vanished . . . Unless you have eaten cold ham in the Rooney kitchen, you simply don't belong to show business . . . Lewis H. Browne, Johns Manville prexy, speaking before the American Bankers' Association, said: "Money is only a medium of exchange and not wealth in itself . . ." Todd Wright, however, will take the money and be fooled . . . If Joe Louis were knocked out before the Paolino fight, there would be no point to him fighting the Basque . . . Football's different . . . Notre Dame, beaten by Northwestern, plays Army and tickets are ungettable, at any price . . . Recommended: Neville Fleeson's song lyrics for Sheila Barrett . . . He and Dwight Fiske are tops in the lyric-penning field . . . Hey, youse: it's only 41 days to Christmas.

Warm Weather Virtually Halts Danville Trade

Stores Stocked Heavily Wit Seasonal Goods; Can't Sell Them.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 14.—Merchants here are disturbed over the stagnation of trade ascribed to the continuing exceptionally mild weather. Mercantile interests, generally sensing a buying revival this fall, with a fair margin of profit assured the tobacco growers, stocked heavily in seasonable goods. There has been practically no demand for them with a long Indian summer.

Gardens are still green, roses are blooming prolifically and dozens of flowers are in blossoms. Only two frosts have been recorded, and, generally speaking, temperatures have been from 15 to 20 degrees higher for the past six weeks than a year ago.

With Christmas six weeks off, merchants fear that the Christmas buying movement will be merged with the normal demand for seasonable merchandist classified as the "necessary" type.

The farmers have developed a strong buying reserve, with payments of from $250,000 to $300,000 here every day since the tobacco season opened October 1. Formerly the grower, after converting his tobacco into cash, filled his needs at once, but this year the farmers are not buying.

Be critical when you judge this popular-priced Rye whiskey!

It is Taste . . . not Claims . . . that tells whiskey quality

Without ballyhoo or fanfare we announced Hiram Walker's Rye—a blend of straight Rye whiskies. We invited you to judge it against the very best whiskey you've ever tasted. After all, the verdict of your own taste is all that counts. And now, to those who have not yet tried this remarkable whiskey—the finest blend of straight Rye whiskies we have made in 77 years—we again say: Judge it critically, not by what we say about it, or by its price, but by its soft, delightfully buoyant bouquet and its unmistakably clear, clean Rye flavor. Let your own taste tell you, regardless of the low price.

The Birth Of A Nation.

Inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth today is a momentous occasion. For, in addition to fulfilling the Filipino's dream for self-government, it marks the virtual withdrawal of a great power from a conquered territory. Coming at a moment when the League of Nations is struggling to arrest the Italian conquest in Ethiopia the felicitations extended from this country to Manila assume the more far-reaching significance.

Of course, this picture is not devoid of ominous shadows. Americans will not forget that the most exuberant congratulations from this country are likely to originate with economic groups that hope to be relieved of Filipino competition. Nor will the citizens of this new semi-independent country forget the interest of Japan in their newly acquired freedom. At present the Japanese interest appears to center chiefly in trade, but the increasing domination of the Far East by the Tokyo government is not a pleasant prospect for the new and defenseless commonwealth to contemplate.

Grave internal problems have already come to the fore. Political independence carries with it no guarantee that a separate economy capable of sustaining the people can be developed, although the continued co-operation of the United States toward that end can be anticipated. More than ever before the Filipinos are conscious of these formidable uncertainties. Yet they are eager to embark upon the tumultuous tides of Far Eastern politics with a captain and crew of their own choosing. Their courage deserves admiration. It warms the congratulations flowing into Manila, and strengthens the hope that this pioneering spirit may triumph over all obstacles.

One other factor that brightens the general picture is the continued exercise of sovereignty over the islands by the United States during a transition period. The Filipinos will have an opportunity to experience most of the difficulties as well as the advantages of a complete separation during the next ten years. If their courageous experiment is then endangered, it should not be impossible to work out a relationship short of complete independence that would satisfy most of their desires for self-government without a complete severance of the ties that have brought the islands to their present advanced level of civilization.

Slightly Inconsistent.

Secretary Roper told the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America that the Administration's basic program of legislative reform has "reached substantial completion" and that the "breathing spell is here—very decidedly so."

This was not the only message of cheer conveyed to the grocers by the Secretary of Commerce in a speech said to have been approved by the White House. One of the particularly striking features of his address was a defense of big business. "I am convinced," said Mr. Roper, "that if we are to be motivated primarily by the assumption that bigness must be penalized and restricted merely because of its size, broad and penetrating recovery will be impossible."

Perhaps that sentence was approved by the White House on the theory that inconsistency is not incompatible with greatness. But it is certainly difficult to reconcile Secretary Roper's charitable judgments with Administration drives against big business and large aggregations of capital, as exemplified by the recently passed revenue law and the "death sentence" decreed for large holding companies.

How, for instance, is it possible to defend a graduated tax upon corporate incomes, levied in accordance with size, except as a discriminatory tax upon bigness as such? Moreover, if the incentive to build and construct on a large-scale basis has been one of the country's greatest assets, as Secretary Roper affirms, why did President Roosevelt say in his June tax message that we ought to "discourage unwieldy and unnecessary corporate surpluses?" Why, too, has he so insistently urged the dissolution of large holding companies, regardless of the efficiency of their managements or the services performed by them?

Business would be more reassured by Secretary Roper if he would reconcile his professions of good will with the punitive policies that actually have been followed by the Administration. This is a time when actions speak more eloquently than words and promises mean little except in the light of performance.

Dishonoring Woodrow Wilson.

In a restrained and dignified letter to the New York Times, Newton D. Baker gives comprehensive refutation to the loose and indefensible doctrine that the United States was dragged into the World War by sinister and surreptitious forces.

The Secretary of War under President Wilson denies categorically that any vested interest, any munitions lobby, any foreign propaganda affected that Administration in the steps which culminated in our declaration of war on Germany. He reiterates that the historic decision, as was so clearly demonstrated at the time, was forced upon a self-respecting government by the results of Germany's policy of unrestricted submarine warfare, and by no other influence.

This fact, of course, is fully recognized in Germany. There it is freely admitted that the imperial government gambled on the chance of starving Great Britain before the United States could become a military factor, and lost by a margin so narrow as to justify the chance that was taken. But in the United States a curious combination of isolationists and pacifists, led by astute and self-seeking demagogues, prefers to ignore attested history in order to paint President Wilson as a helpless puppet, dragged against his will and against national interests into a decision desired by a cabal of all malevolent forces.

It is high time that this reckless travesty of the facts, and this gross insult to the memory of President Wilson, should be stopped. And Mr. Baker, who speaks with unquestionable authority on the subject, has if anything delayed too long in coming to the defense of his former chief. Probably he would have done so earlier except that it was so obviously the province of the present Democratic Administration to defend Mr. Wilson's memory. President Roosevelt, also a high official of the war-time government, could have said with even more propriety than Mr. Baker that only German aggression forced us to fight in 1917. But since Mr. Roosevelt has kept such curious silence, the former Secretary of War has assumed the moral responsibility of speaking a few much-needed truths.

To those who revere the memory of Woodrow Wilson the unfounded allegations of the Nye committee, and the perhaps unintentional defamations from many doubtless well-meaning groups, are intolerably insulting. The previous Democratic occupant of the White House is tacitly labeled as either a fool or a knave by the gross libel that he was a helpless dupe in the hands of munitions makers, international bankers, British agents or what have you. A form of slander more insidious than this ceaseless intimation that President Wilson was a virtual traitor is hard to imagine. And the only regret over Mr. Baker's defense of his chief is that he does not more vigorously fling a foul lie back in the face of those who make use of it.

The vision of President Wilson was infinitely beyond the self-seeking pettiness of those who now traduce him. Forced to fight by German arrogance, his heroic effort was not merely to end the war quickly, but even more to give true reverence to the dead by building so their sacrifice should not be vain. Against him, at home and in Europe, was arrayed every combination of human selfishness, chicanery, stupidity and malevolence. But never did Woodrow Wilson suffer more vile misrepresentation than at the hands of those who today dare to hint that he sold out his country to a bunch of profiteers and aliens.

Food For A Psychiatrist.

That was indeed a depressing funeral service which overflowed Mount Rainier on Wednesday. The parents, the brother and sister of the murdered girl were there, of course. There were also—and also of course—her fiance and her friends. But there were, even more evidently, others.

In the little Methodist Church, which has pews for 300 persons, were 400. Outside were many, many more. And, moving among this gathering, so sensational rumor eagerly reported, was a psychiatrist seeking to take note of any expressions of guilt observable. "Firemen and policemen marshaled the throng. . . . All necks were craning, heads were turning; . . . everybody tried to look at the dead girl's family."

Precisely what expressions of guilt any psychiatrist was expected to detect is not clear. Infallibly, however, such a seeker would have found, in that gaping jostle of pitifully morbid folk, very little to betoken decent respect for human suffering, or to indicate acceptance of the right of privacy commonly accorded to human grief.

Declaration Of Independence.

The election of Orval W. Adams, a hard-hitting critic of New Deal spending policies, as second vice president of the American Bankers Association is regarded in some quarters as evincing banking fraternity hostility to the Administration.

No doubt that sentiment was a factor in determining the outcome of the contest between Mr. Adams and the choice of the nominating committee, Mr. E. G. Bennett, who withdrew from the race in face of unprecedented opposition. But other considerations were decidedly important. For instance, there was the long-standing and intense rivalry between representatives of the unit banks and of chain and branch banks, as typified in the persons of Mr. Adams and Mr. Bennett respectively. Mr. Bennett, moreover, is a close business associate of Gov. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board and manages the chain of institutions known as the Eccles banks.

Since the second vice president normally proceeds in due time to the presidency of the A. B. A., the election of Mr. Bennett might have been a means of strengthening the influence of the head of the Reserve system over the banks of the country. Gov. Eccles showed poor judgment, therefore, in lending his support to a candidate for office who would inevitably have been regarded as his personal representative rather than an independent spokesman for private banking interests. To many delegates to the convention this candidacy must have seemed like an attempt to capture an office for the Administration, as a preliminary to a more complete conquest.

Any threat of this sort would naturally arouse those bankers who are already restive under the restraint placed upon criticism of New Deal policies as a result of the precarious truce declared a year ago. The fight against Mr. Bennett, reported to be the "most tumultuous" in the memory of the oldest delegates, is probably more significant as a ringing declaration of independence, addressed to Gov. Eccles, than as an outright anti-New Deal manifesto.

Dr. Ruhland's Challenge.

There may be vigorous opposition to any plan to introduce "State medicine" into the District, but there can be no dissent from Dr. Ruhland's conclusion that "a reasonable and constructive policy that will make medical service available to the average man at reasonable cost must be worked out." Undoubtedly that is the most important question before the medical profession. Dr. Ruhland is to be congratulated for posing the issue so emphatically before the District medical society.

Under the present system, or lack of system, the medical profession is failing in two grave respects. Too little attention is given to preventive measures and too many people who are in urgent need of medical care are denied it because they cannot afford to pay prevailing fees. At the same time, a large number of doctors could easily care for more patients with advantage to themselves. One does not need to go farther than that to see the need for systematic organization of the sources of medical service.

In this case, however, prescribing a remedy is far more difficult than analysis of the deficiency. Many experienced physicians as well as laymen fear that wholesale employment of doctors by governmental agencies would undermine that unique relationship between doctor and patient which is intimately associated with successful treatment. There is a fear, also, that community doctors might be tainted with bureaucracy to the extent of rendering inefficient service, and that some capable men would shun the profession if private practice were thus narrowed.

However real these fears may be, an attack upon the present disorganization of medical service is certainly in order. No doubt the place to begin is within the public health service now shamefully inadequate in Washington, as Dr. Ruhland's annual report indicates. But the need for preventive medicine and adequate health service for the average family goes far beyond the control of contagion and the establishment of community hospitals. Dr. Ruhland has thrown down a challenge to the medical profession to extend its service in these neglected fields. If it fails to do so, the demand for State medicine will become more and more emphatic.

Riots In Egypt.

Flare-ups of militant, window-smashing nationalism such as are now reported from Cairo are nothing new in Egypt. Since the first days of the Turkish invasion, a vigorous minority of the once proud people of the Pharaohs has balked regularly at the manner in which their country has been shoved about as a pawn on the chessboard of world diplomacy.

It is more than possible that the current riots find a substantial inspiration in Italian influence. A special correspondent of The Post, discussing the eastern Mediterranean scene on the opposite page earlier this week, emphasized the growth of Italian penetration not only in neighboring Libya and Eritrea, but within the Nile basin itself. Italy is determined to win a better share of the rich trade with North Africa and other Arabic-speaking nations. One may surmise, however, that the more conservative elements among the Egyptian nationalists will argue that there is no advantage to be gained by jumping from the frying pan of British domination into the fire of Mussolini's orbit.

In any case, Great Britain now finds herself in a most delicate position. Having taken over Egypt (to say nothing of the Sudan) in a way not remembered particularly for its graciousness, she now has undertaken to restrain Italy, a former ally, from attempting the sincerest form of flattery in Ethiopia. With one hand she brandishes a sword at Il Duce; with the other she must placate protestants against her own efficient empire-building. In the end, London will probably work a compromise with the insurgent Wafdis. They are scarcely to be blamed for seizing this unique opportunity to capitalize, for their own cause, on Anglo-Italian rivalries.

What "Step On It" Is Doing.

From The Christian Science Monitor.

Recently on the same day reports were published with reference to the two major methods of transportation in the United States. One was issued by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads. It stated that not a single passenger had been killed in a train accident on steam railroads during the first six months of 1935.

The other report was from the Census Bureau. It stated that during the 12 months of 1934 automobile accidents were the cause of 33,980 fatalities; it stated further that these appalling figures showed a big jump over 1933, as 1933 also did over 1932.

"Where There Is Life . . ."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recent foreign press dispatches report that a London doctor has confessed to taking the lives of five persons because it was alleged they were afflicted with incurable diseases, and blatantly justifies his deed upon the erroneous assumption that these persons were beyond the pale of medical science, or any other earthly human aid, and therefore considers it an act of mercy to put them out of their misery.

There is no profession, organization, legal body or scientific group of individuals of whomsoever composed, no matter how humanitarian their motives, intentions or purposes, may be, who could be trusted with such an important and deadly weapon as the legal power and authority to kill those who it has been decided are beyond the help of any known medical skill or other scientific application of therapeutical remedial agents. It is too hallowed and sacred a trust to vest in the hands of any human beings in the world and if legally done, it would not be long before the abuses of its tyrannical power would be severely felt, and soon cause and create infinitely more misery than any mere attempts at destroying life in order to alleviate suffering could possibly accomplish or achieve.

There are too many well-known cases in this day and age where the death sentence has been imposed by Judge Medicine, but where such cases have sought spiritual and other means of relief from disease and have been completely cured, or permanent help afforded, to place full and complete confidence in the edict of those who would kill in order to palliate and mitigate suffering. The old saying, "Where there is life there is hope," has not yet been completely thrown into the discard of useless proverbs.

Totenberg's Music.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After hearing the American debut performance of Roman Totenberg with the National Symphony on Thursday, November 7, I turned with interest to the comments of the critics next day. Not one but cautiously put in some qualifying phrase, mostly that in time, and with maturity, great things could be expected of the player. I am not a music critic, and I highly appreciate the difficulty of that task. But I am a professional musician of a certain age and experience.

To such critical musical understanding as I possess, the most impressive element in Totenberg's playing in his maturity, in every sense. He is one of many violinists who have achieved technique. He is one of the few who subordinate it to its true role: the tool and the weapon, kept bright, sharp and wholly capable to be called on in the service of his music. After the tremendous Joachim Cadenza (used by so few on account of its prohibitive difficulties), his return, at the close of the movement, to Beethoven's noble theme was complete mastery, sympathy and understanding.

Washington and the National Symphony should be proud of having his first American performance.

The Extra Work Dilemma.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer has read the letter of "S. Q. Deal" and has shed a few briny tears over the terrible situation therein disclosed.

Ye gods! Isn't it truly pitiful that a man "who draws, say, $50 a week from the Government for services as an expert electrician" should do outside work at a still higher rate of pay "which also calls for electrical skill and training?" Such outrages should be stopped at once! Give one of the "unemployables" a piece of tape and a pair of pliers and let him practice on your house wiring!

Is it not inconceivable that any man who, through years of arduous, self-sacrificing effort, has acquired some degree of skill above the average—while "unemployables" are speeding about in installment "Lizzies," spending their time in pool rooms, speakeasies, etc.—should be allowed to earn an extra penny? We have known of Sundowners who, by sternly denying themselves rest, amusement, and clothes, have actually acquired a little property, on which they pay full taxes. Furthermore, they contribute generously to the Community Chest. And they actually have the effrontery to parade in the guise of good citizens!

It seems to this space clutterer that when the Government steps in and says to its low-paid employes, "You are guilty of a crime, if, after your office hours, you go into the open labor market, and earn an extra penny so that you may have John's tonsils removed, or Mary's teeth straightened, or give Betty Lou piano lessons," then we might just as well nail over the doors of Uncle Sam's factories, the good old slogan, "Let all abandon hope who enter here!"

Has Faith In Americanism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I, too, desire to register a feeling of disgust at the squabble going on regarding the so-called teaching of communism in the District schools.

In every university, college and high school in the country a course in civics or comparative governments is taught as a subject in political science, where all the recognized forms of government, from the tribe through the city-state, oligarchy, monarchy, communistic-state, socialistic-state, dictatorship and republic, are described in varying degrees of thoroughness. Courses of this kind are old.

The advocacy of communism is another and wholly different thing. It is not done by our publicly paid teachers but by outside organizations engaged in that activity, and it is these that Gen. Fries and others are after. But talk without legal action will not accomplish much in this respect. Occasionally in the schools we find agitation by some youthful "nut" in the classes, often planted there for the purpose. It is this kind of insidious activity that should be stopped. Shallow discussion in the newspapers is good advertising for communism without any constructive accomplishment.

If our youth cannot be trusted to decide simple political questions of this kind presented in school classes, without "falling for" monarchies, communism, dictatorships, etc., then they are not safe with the ballot and our American form of government is in peril. Despite much prevalent shallow thinking, I am not yet ready to believe such to be the case. If they know the purposes of communistic agitators, they should, with their instruction in political science, be uninfluenced.

Praise For The President.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In March, 1933, at which time our Nation faced financial distress with every bank forced to close its doors and unemployment and its resultant suffering prevalent among all classes of people, President Roosevelt took his oath of office. Since that inaugural day he has bent every effort and used his health and time unstintingly to lift the fog of depression that has encompassed the country.

His program of recovery has brought new confidence to a disheartened people and although much remains yet to be accomplished, already the benefits of his guidance are evident in a revival of business, banking security and the decrease of unemployed. Roosevelt has helped our Nation more than we, who voted for him, ever dreamed or hoped he could. So it is with thankful hearts that the great majority of American people give him their support.

It is up to all straight-thinking Americans to ignore the gibes and hoots of the jealous and selfish few and continue to follow with unfailing confidence the leadership of this man which a kind Providence has sent us in our hour of need.

Example From The British.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The question of the salute to the first President of the Philippine Commonwealth seems to invite attention of students of Far Eastern affairs.

One need not delve far into the sensibilities of politics in the Far East to comprehend the question of prestige involved. This seems to be an elementary question of Far Eastern diplomacy in which the United States, in spite of almost 100 years of contact with the Far East, appears to be still a novice.

The United States may well learn from the British. In India, where native pride, prejudices and sensibilities seem to be congenital with the ruling class, the British prove themselves to be most adroit in handling questions of prestige and precedence. In matters of salute, the Imperial Government grants 21 guns to five Indian rulers, 19 guns to six, three of whom, the Nawab of Bhopal, the Maharajah of Indore and the Maharana of Udaipur, receive 19 guns with two additional guns permanently within their own territories.

Had Secretary of War Dern taken a little time to study the question of national prestige involved in a salute, he would have been amused by his rash arbitrariness through lack of acquaintance with the usual courtesies of international intercourse. He could have granted a concession in the British fashion by according President Quezon a 21-gun salute as the chief executive of a government, or 19 guns with two additional guns permanently in the Philippine Commonwealth.

This concession would have sufficed to assuage the sensibilities of the native Filipinos. Of course, the new Philippine Commonwealth is not a sovereign state. But its chief executive is elected by the people themselves, and in this respect, the character of his office partakes of that of a sovereign.

The Post Impressionist

The Masculine Smoke-Screen

Post Office, Friday.

MANY men have written us in support of the Major's recent contention that women ought to have smoking-cars of their own. Until today, only two women have bearded the brigand, and these by mere postcards. Now, however, comes a letter from Mrs. Leila Kestler, which (let the Major sue if he wants to!) we propose to publish——

Well, to publish in part.

It begins with a bit of what we suspect to be very feminine flattery.

"You," it says—meaning, if you please, us—"cultivate successfully the most difficult of arts: the Art of the Open Mind. Again and again, in your Column, you have given women an opportunity to reply to those stupid generalizations commonly launched by men against womenkind. Therefore I'm sure you will permit me to refute the latest contribution of your super-masculine correspondent."

A perilous adventure, she is well aware. Still, she'll risk it—in the cause of her sex. Of course, she promises restraint: "You, my dear Post-Impressionist, forbid the flinging of plates by way of controversy. Though a smile of indifference should suffice to shatter the egotism of the ordinary male, this Major's is of a crustaceous variety which I much doubt even a hairpin could puncture—yet I'll be careful of the china."

But will she keep her promise?

"What," she asks, "is the Major's present grievance?" And she answers: "A notoriously honest, reasonable, fascinating man (he says so himself), he is being smoked-out of smoking-cars by women-smokers—and women non-smokers. Women, he contends, are being driven into that last hiding-place of men by their fatal susceptibility to masculine charm. 'All men,' he declares, 'are fascinating to all women.'"

And then she throws a plate!

"Superficially," she writes, "one would say that it must be wonderful to be carried through life upon a wave of such self-confidence. Alas, fundamentally your military friend's remark betrays the fear that, one by one, the he-man's garments of greatness are being stripped from him. Persecution-mania is an accompaniment of delusions of grandure."

The dish breaks. That's just too bad for it—perhaps also for the Major. Nevertheless, the smash relieves the atmosphere. Mrs. Kestler turns to somewhat more argumentative methods.

Does the Major remember those past times when "the gross habits of the he-man barred women from any desire for free association with him?" Does the poor fellow regret such improvements as have occurred within him? "He complains," says his critic, "that women now think they can go anywhere." And the answer is that they can!

Whereupon:

"Women who take up smoking and drinking do so merely in an effort to meet men more than half-way, in order to make themselves more comfortable in a man-managed world. Getting a thing first-hand seems more desirable than taking it on the rebound—that is, if it happens to be smoke, whiskey or onions. When one asks what men ever got by forbidding cigarettes to women, one can find an adequate answer only in the delight inherent in the power to issue prohibitions.

"A railroad-train is a public utility and equal fare entitles passengers to equal privileges. No question of sex or habits is involved. This Major—good at the mechanical trick of striking percentages—talks of the number of non-smoking women in smoking-cars, but he doesn't mention the non-smoking men in those cars." If a passenger wants to have a place to himself and his own sex, or herself and her own, that passenger can s' ways go home—if unmarried.

The unlucky Major, wondering why non-smoking women wanted to enter smoking-cars, asked whether anybody ever saw a man waiting for his wife in a beauty-parlor. "I have," Mrs. Kestler rejoins—"and the fact is that the psyche of the he-man manifests an inferiority complex.

This would seem to end the matter unhappily. But she does see a faint glimmer of light ahead:

"Women can hope that the he-man will be replaced by a kind, just, humane, intelligent gentleman who need not worry about his superiority—because he will be s perior. And vice-versa."

Superior—we were on the point of inquiring—to whom? But we were deterred by Mrs. Kestler's final paragraph. It runs thus:

"Why do men, especially he-men, feel that they are fascinating to women? Because of indirect control, the bag of the Becky Sharps—flattery . . . The ladies must eat, you know. And so must their children."

* * *

Thus goes, we repeat, the closing paragraph of Mrs. Kestler's letter. Perhaps you will now understand why we suspect the sincerity of its opening paragraph.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

No Aficionado.

Barcelona, Nov. 14.

HERE are some intimate details of the bull fight, the national sport of Spain, which seem to have been in all the literature which your correspondent has read on the subject. For one thing, since the dictatorship of the late Gen. Primo Rivera the unfortunate horses which the picadors ride in the bull ring to draw the fury of the bulls have been equipped with protective corsets which are stoutly ribbed and padded somewhat like the old-fashioned, quilted American football pants.

Senor Rivera was humane only by accident in issuing this state decree. His intention was authentic only, for it struck him that a horse which has been ripped open by the horns of a bull staggering around the arena and sometimes escaping into the public streets of the neighborhood to drag itself to a lingering death was an unsightly spectacle. Such a policy seemed uncalled for, and there was some murmuring of popular resentment among sport-loving Spaniards when they first saw the bony nags of the picadors entering the ring in their armor. For to them for centuries past the dying struggles of a defenseless horse, mutilated and panic-stricken, had been one of the most charming sights of the contest.

However, the will of the dictator prevailed and became the fixed custom in bull fighting, just as in the United States by the will of James A. Farley, Postmaster General, it became entirely legal for a fighter to strike his opponent low, contrary to very old tradition. The character of Mr. Farley is present at bull fights in the person of the president of the arena, who is exalted and venerated by bull fighters just as Mr. Farley was saluted and respected by prize fighters and their managers during his long reign as the czar of the roped arena.

• • • •

THE parade of bull fighters which is the preliminary preceding the match in the ring, comes to a halt before the box in which the president sits in considerable state. This is a very picturesque review of the corps of bull fighters, and it is ruled by strict formality. Having been lavishly saluted, the president of the occasion is then addressed by the matador, who asks his formal permission to kill the bull which is waiting in the bull pen behind a locked door at the other end of the arena. It has never been recorded that the president refused this permission. If he did so the management would have to give the customers their money back, and it will readily be understood that bull fight promoters, like producers of prize fights, have a hearty aversion to that. So the president invariably says yes, it will be quite all right with him to proceed with the torment of the bull. At this point the president takes a great wind-up and throws down the key to the bull pen. This key is now a mere symbol made of either some very light, inoffensive metal or rubber, but in earlier days it was made of cast iron and weighed something over a pound. The substitution of the symbolic key to the bull pen for the actual cast-iron key will be understood when it is explained that sometimes there is an honorary president, a beautiful debutante of the community, who is given the distinguished honor of throwing down the key.

• • • •

IN the old days the beautiful debutantes of Spain were rather stouter than at present, and they had sufficient wing and control to deliver the key in one mighty heave to the matador, who would catch it on the fly. But the human race is not what it used to be, and the debutantes, and some of the gentlemen presidents, too, for that matter, began to deliver wild pitches with the cast-iron key. The keys would drop into the crowds and hit the cash customers on the head with regrettable results, often taking deep divots.

Nowadays the key which is thrown down is not only harmless, bouncing lightly off the skulls of the sportsmen sitting down in front of the president's box, but does not even fit the bull pen, anyway. The keeper of the bull pen has his own key for that.

Further effeminization of the sport of torturing and slaughtering the bull in public consists in the mental armor which is worn by the cowboy who rides the horse which is equipped with the corset. The cowboy, or picador, presents one side of himself and his horse to the bull, and on that side up to his hip he wears a boot or trouser leg made of armor plate, which sounds, as Irvin Cobb once said of the name of Maj. Archibald Butt, like a cook-stove falling downstairs, when he is unhorsed and dragged over the wall of the arena by his valets to escape the rush of the game but exhausted and fast expiring bull.

• • • •

YOUR correspondent may have further confidence to relate in regard to the sport of bull fighting, but for the present it will be only this:—That the bull is not so much defeated in competition with his fair and sporting opponent as he is slowly mutilated, harried and tortured until he is too tired from his wounds, exertion and loss of blood to offer any more resistance than a final desperate charge to receive the welcome thrust of the blade which puts him out of his misery.

British Elections

Baldwin And His Tory Colleagues Maneuver Skillfully To Win Vast Powers From British Electorate In Yesterday's Voting.

By Donald K. Price.

Special Correspondence to The Post.

WHEN Stanley Baldwin and his Parliamentary colleagues went before the country yesterday they requested an extension of one of the most effective concentrations of power ever turned over to a government by a democratic electorate. In spite of the lack of constitutional restrictions, the universal franchise and the preeminent authority of the House of Commons, the British Cabinet exercises its power with little direct popular interference. For that reason a British general election, though seemingly less momentous than a Presidential election in the United States, has more comparative importance.

The Cabinet, the inner ring of the Ministry, is sanctioned only by constitutional custom, not by law. On the other hand, it has no legal checks and balances to hamper its actions, nor any separation of powers to lessen its responsibility to the electorate. Cabinet officers must be Members of Parliament. They combine the functions of heads of American Executive Departments with those of chairman of the most influential Congressional committees. Even the judiciary is headed by the Lord Chancellor, a member of the Ministry and a peer in the House of Lords.

Under the doctrine of collective responsibility the Prime Minister, named by the King for his predominant influence in the majority party, selects his ministerial colleagues and insists that they conform to party policy on every issue. Such responsibility is well illustrated by the remark of Lord Melbourne to his Cabinet nearly a century ago: "It doesn't matter much what we say, but we must all say the same thing."

• • • •

THE Prime Minister holds the whip hand over Parliament, even though the Ministry may be overthrown by a single adverse vote of the Commons on a major issue. In such a case, or at any politically strategic moment, the Prime Minister may demand that the Commons be dissolved by royal decree and a new election held. The present election is thus being held before the end of the statutory Parliamentary term.

The Prime Minister holds as well the power of "putting on the whips" to secure a rigid party line-up. Majority members will rarely vote against such coercion when the existence of their Ministry is at stake, and when its defeat will mean an expensive election with possible loss of many individual seats. The Prime Minister, too, as First Lord of the Treasury, must approve all financial bills presented to the House of Commons. The house does not have the constitutional power to grant funds unless requested by Ministers of the Crown, and has in effect relinquished the right to cut down requested appropriations.

The only certain check on this centralized power is the right of the house to vote against the Prime Minister and thus overthrow the government. The American tradition of insurgency makes such a privilege seem highly effective to us. Frequent Congressional rebellions against Presidential influence would seem to indicate that similar methods might be possible in Great Britain, especially since patronage has been largely crippled there by the competitive civil service. Yet the privilege which a Norris or a Glass enjoys of voting against his party and running for office under its name is a luxury which the British M. P. is not permitted.

• • • •

THE latter cannot entrench himself in his own constituency, serve its interest, and thus depend on re-election. He must be nominated by the central committee of his party. He must pay without patronage as much of his election expenses as the central authority refuses to contribute. And his election speeches must conform to party doctrines. In a "by-election" for a vacant seat, a Labor Party candidate must even submit his speeches in advance for party censorship. If he rebels, his chances of election are slim.

Since the M. P. need not reside, and frequently does not, in his own constituency, a popular outsider, backed by party support, may be nominated in his place. If he has been merely lukewarm, or even if it suits mere party expediency to give his seat to a Minister or other valuable leader, the recalcitrant member may be sent from a secure district to compete in a constituency where his defeat is certain. The "back-benchers," or undistinguished party members, are thus merely well disciplined party votes, and there are not even specialized Parliamentary committees in which they may prove their capability.

Thus, after an election is decided on some major issue, the party leaders can force their subordinates to conform on all lesser questions. If a Conservative is returned on an issue of foreign policy, he cannot choose to vote with the Labor Party on unemployment insurance or traffic regulations. He must obey the party whip or risk political suicide, unless he has enough personal influence and following, such as that enjoyed by Winston Churchill, to bargain with his superiors.

• • • •

THE Conservative victory indicated in yesterday's election will defer answer to the question of whether the bureaucratic hierarchy of the civil service would be as well adapted to governing Great Britain under a clearly Socialist regime.

Open-handed Parliamentary delegation of power to the civil service makes the question important. The professional civil servants who hold practically all administrative offices up to those occupied by Members of Parliament, are still selected largely from Oxford and Cambridge graduates. The number of successful competitors from other English universities between 1925 and 1934 was less than 10 per cent of that from the older institutions. But liberal scholarships assist about half of the students at Oxford and Cambridge, and the Labor Party has recently subsidized promising young leaders there. So the civil service has become an aristocracy of intellect rather than of wealth or rank. Its tradition of impartiality would go far toward mitigating the shock of a fundamental change in British political theory.

However, the Tory Etonians of the Foreign Office are unlikely to be disturbed by yesterday's election. The National Government, predominantly Conservative, followed up its crashing 1931 success by restoring a measure of prosperity and employment to all but the miserable "depressed areas." Nevertheless, pacifist and internationalist sentiment made a Labor victory seem not improbable last spring. But the Jubilee celebration, largely paid for by the Socialist London County Council, strengthened the Tory position considerably. Then Mussolini made imperial loyalty and support of the League nearly synonymous. Yesterday many Britons found an idealistic excuse for their habit of voting Tory when frightened.

The Conservatives have stolen their opponents' thunder before in British history. Pitt "un-Whigged" Fox by maneuvering him into a support of hereditary monarchy. Disraeli "caught the Liberals bathing and stole their clothes" by putting through the 1867 extension of the franchise. But neither reversal was more surprising than Baldwin's capture of pacifist support during the past few months, which have seen the resignation of Lansbury as leader of His Majesty's Opposition.

The Prime Minister may well be content with his tactics, and with the tremendous power and influence which yesterday's balloting is likely to give Great Britain's government "of the people, by the gentleman, for the business man."

Filipinos' Future

By W. L. Schurz

Unpleasant Picture.

EVEN the friendliest well-wisher must regard the initiation of the new Philippine Commonwealth with misgivings. Not all the jubilee and fanfare incident to the ceremonies in Manila can obscure the unpleasant fact that the Filipino Republic faces a hazardous prospect. It may not be good form at a christening to harbor uncertainties as to the child's future; but in the Orient, forms may mask a multitude of disagreeable realities. Frankness on such an occasion is taboo—on our part, because we are liable to entertain a naive faith in the results of American political training, and on the part of the Asiatic, because deception is of the essence of his political technique.

Whatever civilizing influences the 300-odd years of Spanish rule brought to the Philippines, they did not bring the habit of self-government. The Filipinos were as ill-equipped for a democratic regime in 1898 as they were in 1565. And, however intensive may have been their schooling in the last 37 years under American tutelage, the course has been altogether too short. The forms have been learned, but no amount of cramming or political intuition can compensate for the lack of a democratic tradition. Philippine society is not democratic, and the lowly tao is no more material for a sovereign citizenry than was the Mexican peon or the Cuban guajiro at the birth of those republics. And by reason of poverty, ignorance and the habit of subservience they are as ready to be election fodder for the politicos.

• • • •

IN spite of a prevailing Malay stock, the population of the islands lacks the lingual, cultural and religious unity that is so vital to a successful national life. Tagalog, Ilocano and Visayan speak a different tongue. There is a gap of many centuries between the culture levels of the upper-class citizen of Manila and the Mangyans of Mindora. Divided between the Christians of the middle and northern islands and the Moslem Moros of the south, the Philippines hold within them such religious antagonisms as have bedeviled the Par-Britannica in India. The Moros, in fact, are a people by themselves, truculent by instinct and predatory by long practice, zealous sectaries of Islam, restless and resistent to modern influences.

The external difficulties of the young state are even more serious than those from within. Barring some unforseen reversal of current trends in Far-Eastern affairs, the Philippines are doomed to become a part of the Japanese empire. Such a reversal could only come from a diversions of Japan's attention by Russia or by England's realization of the eventual menace to her own colonies and dominions.

To say that Japan does not want the Philippines is arrant nonsense. They would not only provide her with another outlet for her growing population, but a closed market for her manufactures and a valuable source of tropical raw materials. Soon after the coming of the Spaniards, Hideyoshi, lord of Japan, planned the conquest of the islands, and when the Japanese took Formosa in our own time they moved down to within easy striking distance of Luzon. The Spaniards expelled a Japanese force from the Cagayan coast of the great island before the end of the sixteenth century, and Japanese depredations in the same region have continued into the present century. In the south a large and well-organized Japanese colony has established itself in the Davao district of Mindanao, where they have defied the insular land laws with impunity.

• • • •

WHEN the time is ripe I believe that the appearance of a Japanese fleet in Manila Bay will herald the end of the Philippine Republic. If an "incident" is needed to satisfy the usual formalities, one can be easily arranged—a Japanese hemp grower killed by a Mindanao native would serve. The Chinese might be consulted for further details as to the formula for such occasions.

In spite of the excellent fighting qualities of the Filipino soldier, he would be no match for the relentless military machine from the north. Sober people in the islands shake their heads when they contemplate the future. If we show ourselves so trustful as to expect a long life for the Philippine Commonwealth we shall only expose ourselves to the unspoken ridicule of the Japanese realists, into whose hands we have played. No treaty of nonaggression or League of Nations can save it when its time comes.

And when it is all over Japan will have thrown the screen of her islands clear across the eastern face of Asia. Only the British post at Singapore on the Straits of Malacca can prevent her from drawing her curtain of steel around the southern end of the continent. And once the Japanese flag flies over the old Spanish ramparts of Zamboanga the southern road to the rich Dutch Indies and Australasia will be wide open. It is not a pleasant picture, but the Orient is not a pleasant place for the weak.

Frederick Plans To Build Market

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 13.—Officials of some counties may have difficulty in determining what use shall be made of the profits from the Virginia liquor stores, but no such trobules perplex the supervisors of Frederick.

This county's share in the returns will build a public market, provided the taxpayers approve the issuance of bonds not to exceed $15,000 with which to match a PWA grant. The election has been set for December 3.

The county received $4,750 for its share of the liquor money. It is estimated that with a like sum, each year, the obligation can be discharged within four or five years with no increase in taxes.

Plans for the structure have been requested for the extension division at V. P. I.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 14 (AP).—Police Judge A. A. Hatch was invited to Thanksgiving dinner today.

"Yes, sir."

"How will I know you've bought the turkey?'

"You're invited, Judge."

'Rebel,' 91, Has Lincoln Letter Paroling Him to Dying Mother

P. B. Breeden, Virginian, Was War Prisoner in New York.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., Nov. 14.—P. B. Breeden, of Greene County, living near the Page County line, is the owner of a letter that was written his father by President Lincoln while the younger Breeden was a member of the Confederate army.

Breeden is now 91. During the Battle of Cross Keyes he was captured by the Union forces and taken to a Federal prison at Albany, N. Y.

While he was in the New York prison Breeden's mother became desperately ill. His father, Philip Breeden, exhausted all his resources to have his son come home and see his mother before she died. All his efforts failed. He then wrote the following letter to President Lincoln at the White House:

"Dear President Lincoln: My son, P. B. Breeden, is confined in a Union prison in Albany, N. Y. You are the only one who can release him and let him get home and see his dying mother. She pleads daily for his return, if only to get a glimpse of the boy. Will you help a dying mother and relieve an anxious father?"

In a few days the father received the following from President Lincoln:

"I have ordered your son's release and try to keep his mother alive until the boy gets home. I am trusting to his honor to return to his former place until there is an end of hostilities."

Soldier Breeden reached his mother's side two days before she died. He remained until she was buried and then made his way back to Albany.

Discarded Overcoats Are Sought by Mission

In a plea yesterday for discarded overcoats and men's clothing, John S. Bennett, superintendent of the Central Union Mission declared the mission is sheltering nightly about 500 men, not one of whom has had an overcoat. Many are still wearing their summer clothing and not a few are still in shirt sleeves, Bennett said.

The mission will receive clothing at its headquarters, 613 C street northwest, or send its truck to any part of the city to make collections.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Soviet Russia's Troubles Begin.

The complete failure of Stalin's program to keep the Russian people free from worry and distress is at hand. Soviet Russia has been allowed to take up golf!

• • • •

Golf's introduction in Soviet Russia was an impressive event. Premier Stalin threw out the first divot. The Commissar of Cross Country Hiking pressed a button officially opening a sand trap.

• • • •

Orloff Petrushky, chief of the Soviet Bureau for the Development of Proletarian Backswings, co-operating with Hasha Letemoff, founder of the Share the Bunions movement, fired a ten gun salute over a peasant trying to sink a putt with a wooden club.

• • • •

Olga Zizzinoff, a famous Russian beauty, broke a bottle of vodka over the head of a former Grand Duke now acting as a caddy on the public links and—presto!—Soviet Russia's real troubles were launched.

• • • •

Mr. Robert Miller, of Duxbury, Mass., drove the first ball to give Russians the key to permanent unhappiness.

• • • •

The ball happened to go straight down the alley. Mr. Miller was immediately made American Golf Envoy to Soviet Russia with a suggestion that he stand on the one demonstration and not complicate matters.

• • • •

All over Russia the masses are now standing in kitchens, corridors, open fields, backyards and office buildings taking practice swings with everything from a broom to a table leg. No more violent gestures have been made in Russia since the Red Revolt.

• • • •

Alarmed military aides rushed to Stalin and advised that he do something immediately to stop the game and stem the rising dissatisfaction which is bound to reach a height as soon as the peasants begin organizing themselves into foursomes and playing for ten cents a hole.

Stalin was helpless, however. He had made the mistake of buying a set of clubs himself!

• • • •

"Too late!" sobbed the Premier as he teed up another one.

• • • •

But the firing squads are ready and some executions of golf instructors are looked for. And if we were Mr. Miller, of Duxbury, Mass., we'd get out of Russia before Stalin realizes his slice is incurable.

The Autumn Auto Show Influence.

Ima Dodo went to the Horse Show and, pointing to one of the horses said, "I'll take that one if I can get a demonstration and pay in 12 months."

Milk is being advertised as having so many virtues that we anticipate the appearance of a cow on the radio any day now.

She Has a Sponsor.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going milking, sir," she said; "My cow is going, too, you know—You'll hear us on the radio!"

Henry Ford has bought the oldest windmill in Massachusetts. He didn't figure in Congress at all, it seems.

It's on Cape Cod. Henry will put it in his museum where, if we are a judge of windmills, it will be highly uncomfortable the rest of its life.

By Morgan Baker.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, target for a barrage of criticism including charges of undue favoritism toward college graduates in appointments and promotions from the American Federation of Government Employes and numerous members of Congress, last night issued a lengthy statement denying the charges.

BAKER.

The statement, signed by Harry B. Mitchell, president, Civil Service Commission, declares the statement of E. Claude Babcock, AFGE president, that examinations are being held which discriminate in favor of college, "is not based on facts."

"It has been the commission's practice over a period of years," Mr. Mitchell says, "to require specified educational training as a prerequisite for admission to many examinations in the professional and scientific groups. The general standard with respect to educational training for such positions has neither been raised nor lowered. There has been no trend either way."

Cites Instances.

Mr. Mitchell then proceeds to cite figures, percentages and specific instances:

"A Senate resolution (S. Res. 67, February 4, 1935) directed the Civil Service Commission to furnish information as to what steps had been taken to encourage graduates of educational institutions to enter civil service examinations in competition for Federal positions. The commission's reply under date of April 12, 1935, explained that a number of examinations are announced for positions in the subprofessional, professional and technical groups in which specified educational training is a prerequisite for admission and that in addition to the general publicity given to all examinations appropriate announcements are furnished educational institutions for posting on their bulletin boards.

"It was pointed out, however, that more than 80 per cent of the positions in the Government service require no specified institutional training. Under the commission's examination procedure for such positions there is no educational prerequisite for admission—ability and aptitude as shown by successful experience or practical examination tests are the factors which determine eligibility for appointment.

"Although fully appreciating the value of institutional training, the commission endeavors not to discriminate against the individual who for reasons beyond his control has been denied the educational opportunities enjoyed by others. In this connection, it may be stated that during the present calendar year the commission has announced approximately 4,927 examinations. This number includes examinations announced throughout the country for appointment in the departmental service at Washington as well as those announced locally for positions in the field service. Of the 4,927 examinations announced, only 151 required college graduation, 62 required college training (less than graduation), and 4,714 required no college training.

Favoritism Denied.

"With reference to the allegation that college men are unduly favored in promotions, the commission states most emphatically that the duties of the vast majority of positions in the Government service are such that college graduation is not required either for original appointment or promotion. As an illustration of this, the commission since August, 1933, has filled by promotion the position of assistant chief examiner (field), four positions as manager of civil service districts and four positions as assistant district manager. These positions are among the most important administrative positions in the commission's organization. Of the employes promoted to these positions three were college graduates and six were not college graduates. Promotions within the commission's organization are based on experience, ability and efficiency, and not on scholastic attainments. College graduates are neither favored nor discriminated against.

"In the letter to members of Congress, Mr. Babcock called attention to an examination recently announced by the commission for a position paying $1,260 a year which required three years of college training. Apparently Mr. Babcock deliberately failed to mention the title of the position or the nature of the duties. The facts are that the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture advised the commission that it desired to employ engineering students for work during summer vacations. The idea was to give these students practical experience along with their education and to furlough them at the end of the summer vacation to enable them to return to college to complete their senior year of college work.

"Examination procedure is not an exact science and the commission does not claim perfection for its examinations. Even admitting that mistakes are sometimes made, there is no basis for the charge that changes have been made in the examination requirements with a view to favoring college men. The commission has a high regard for your good will and good opinion and believes that you will agree, after reviewing the facts presented in this letter, that information disseminated with the intention of creating an impression that the commission is unduly favoring college men is misleading and wholly without foundation in fact."

Babcock's Retort.

Mr. Babcock quickly replied last night to the civil service statement, also citing specific instances, figures, etc. The A. F. G. E. reply follows:

"The statement by the Civil Service Commission designed to show that college graduates are not unduly favored, there has, in fact, a tendency to show the exact opposite. Furthermore, it is misleading in every respect, for it states that the commission gave about 5,000 examinations during the past year, of which only a few required college graduation or training. This statement is misleading because by far the greater part of the 5,000 examinations were purely local examinations, many of them for very low paid jobs, or for mechanical and crafts jobs in which college training would be of no value.

"For the benefit of the commission, these facts should be known to its members, and I consider it my duty to enlighten them: There were, during the calendar year 1934, just 76 national announcements of examinations given by the Civil Service Commission, and in the calendar year 1935 there have been given, to date, 124 such announcements of examinations. Obviously it is this figure, not a figure of examinations for custodial positions, crafts positions, etc., that should be considered with respect to the requirements of college education and training.

"The commission's own statement says that more examinations required college graduation or training than the entire number of national announcements, showing that some of the local examinations required college graduation or training.

"With respect to the position of student engineer, the commission says: 'Apparently Mr. Babcock deliberately failed to mention the title of the position or nature of the duties. The facts are that the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture advised the commission that it desired to employ engineering students for work during summer vacations.

Lash Darkener Hailed as Safe Aid to Beauty

Preparation Indorsed by New York and Chicago Boards of Health.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THERE'S no denying that nature had an ornery streak when she gave out eyelashes. While some people have long, luxuriant curly ones, others must be content with skimpy fringes. Content? Well, hardly! There's not a woman alive who doesn't want alluring lashes, and there are few these days who don't try to have them.

One excellent way is to darken the lashes with a certain fine tint which will last four or five weeks. This is a safe preparation which conforms to the rulings of the New York and Chicago boards of health.

You can imagine what a relief to use something of this sort. You know then that it won't smudge when you rub your eyes, that it won't smart, and that it won't run no matter how many tears you shed, or what a downpour you brave.

Furthermore it won't make the lashes brittle.

To apply it, of course, takes a little time, but think of the time you save! First, you wash the brows and lashes thoroughly with soap and water and rinse afterward. Then, you cover the entire area around the eyes with with cold cream. Wet your fingers and make cotton pads which you place as close as possible to the lower lash roots. The cream helps hold the pads in place and prevents stains. You take bottle No. 1 of the darkener, pour some in a porcelain dish and apply carefully with the camel's hair brush that comes with it.

Allow to dry for a few minutes and then pour six drops from the No. 2 bottle into another porcelain dish and apply with the other brush. You'll notice the effect is instantaneous.

The tint comes in two shades, black and brown. Brunettes should use the black, and blondes and redheads, brown.

Becoming Make-Up Caps.

FEW THINGS can become quite as indispensable as a make-up cap. Just ask the woman who owns one! It protects her hair from creams, lotions and powders. If she uses it when she dusts and sweeps it will keep her hair from becoming so quickly soiled. And, of course, she can use it in the shower or the tub.

Make-up caps have long been popular, but those shown in an F street shop have followers by the hundreds. These are made of a dull rubberized fabric, easily washable. They are fashioned like an artist's beret and of course are unusually becoming.

Available in soft, lovely pastel colors and cost but 35 cents.

Suede Covers for Card Tables.

YOUR CARD table is ten times more attractive if you cover it with one of those suede covers that are waterproof and washable.

Because of their nonslippery surface they are ideal to play on as they check the sliding of cards. Then, too, your guests can dispense with coasters for their beverage glasses.

You may buy them in red, green, blue and tan. Your monogram in a contrasting shade is placed in a corner free of charge.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE LADY with brown eyes was married during the taupe period of decoration. So she bought a taupe rug and a taupe over-stuffed set, then added odd pieces here and there. And now she realizes that the different things don't go together and the whole effect is rather drab.

They're all very good and very comfortable, so she has to keep them . . . but she can add some new things that are needed and wonders just what style would be best to pull the effect together. And what colors for new furniture covers to give life to the room yet harmonize with the taupe rug and ivory walls which have to remain.

We'd suggest that the new furniture be keyed to the mood of the old. If the general effect is very informal, then the additions might be in colonial maple or walnut. If the general effect is more dignified, then we'd have the new pieces in eighteenth century mahogany. Both types are simple in line, therefore harmonious with various styles of furniture and will tend toward unifying and co-ordinating the room.

And the colors we'd use with taupe and ivory are the autumn leaf shades . . . mellow golds, deep brilliant reds, russets and tired old greens.

Social Security Law Comes to Aid Of 7,000,000 'Forgotten Children'

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS MARY IRENE ATKINSON, of the Children's Bureau, is in charge of administering sections of the new social security act relating to child welfare. She believes the depression has harmed children psychologically.

Rural Areas to Receive Most Benefits, Says Miss Atkinson.

By Dudley Harmon.

AS EACH DAY sees greater progress accomplished in setting up the executive machinery provided for in the recent social security bill, more than 7,000,000 "forgotten children" begin at last to come into their own.

Or, in the words of Miss Mary Atkinson, recently appointed director of the child welfare division of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor:

"The Administration, long occupied with the plight of the 'forgotten man,' now turns its attention, with the enactment of this bill, to the more youthful victims of the depression."

Miss Atkinson will administer the sections of the act which relate to child welfare services. She explained that the new bill appropriates $1,500,000 to enable the Federal Government to co-operate with State public welfare agencies in establishing welfare services for the care of homeless, dependent and neglected children. A survey made in 1930, she said, showed that between 250,000 and 300,000 children in the United States were being cared for outside their own homes. To this number the depression has added an additional 6,971,000—young dependents who are being supported by public relief.

"The 'forgotten man' is not the only one who has suffered from the economic conditions of the last few years," Miss Atkinson said. "The strain has been almost as great on his family. Although his children have been fed and clothed by relief agencies, the psychological effect of their father's troubles on their young lives is most unfortunate.

"Another danger lying in wait for the children of the unemployed exists in the fact that they are apt to grow up without ever having known the will to work. Today the tradition of work still runs strong in this country, as a tradition existing since pioneer times does not die in an instant. The fathers hate to take Government money, but will their children? Who knows? At any rate, there is a great possibility they may begin to take their daily bread for granted, and this possibility our bureau is eager to avoid."

Miss Atkinson described the methods by which social workers will attempt to combat these more shadowy evils of the depression. They will endeavor to build up the child's morale, she says, by projects of a work and recreational nature. The Children's Bureau works in close cooperation with the National Youth Administration, and the latter agency, according to Miss Atkinson, will aid in finding employment or formulating useful projects for young people between 16 and 25.

Rural Areas Hampered.

Miss Atkinson believes the greatest benefits from the new organization will be felt in rural areas.

"In most cities," she said, "systems of caring for poor and delinquent children are generally well organized. Private and municipal agencies are alert to stamp out juvenile difficulties before they become acute. In small towns and farming areas, however, the facilities for dealing with such cases are usually considerably hampered by insufficient funds and slight attempt at organization. Consequently, it is here that our workers are most needed.

"The needs of less fortunate children today are manifold, and our workers will have their hands full from the start. The Federal Emergency Relief program has revealed the vast differences in care and protection of children in this country in a way which never before has been possible because this is the one program which has penetrated to the smallest political subdivisions. We know beyond doubt that there are thousands of children whose opportunities are limited because of the geographical location of their birthplace. There should be certain common denominators of opportunity regardless of where a child grows up, which will enable him to develop to the maximum his potential capabilities. The objective of the social security act is, in the final analysis, to give every man's child his chance."

Miss Atkinson, who has been a newspaperwoman and a school teacher at various times, has done much work with child welfare agencies, and before her present appointment was a regional social worker for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Each Part of U. S. Has Favorite Stuffing for Thanksgiving Bird

Bread or Biblets Preferred for Pilgrim's Thanksgiving Dinner; Oyster, Pecan and Sausage Dressings Have Many Champions.

By Elisabeth Ellicott Poe.

THE ALL-AMERICAN BIRD, the Thanksgiving turkey, is the same from coast to coast, it is only the stuffing or dressing that is different in various sections.

On that first Thanksgiving Day, centuries ago, when the settlers about Plymouth Rock gathered to enjoy the first feast of a famine year, no doubt Mistress Priscilla Alden and other Puritan housewives debated seriously how to stuff the wild turkeys.

Ten to one the verdict was for bread stuffing, nicely spiced with available herbs. The main material must have been handled much in this manner.

Bread Dressing.

Two cups stale cut-up bread, or ¼ loaf sandwich bread, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 3 tablespoons drippings, 1 tablespoon each chopped onion and lovage—an herb well known to those of English descent with a flavor resembling celery; 2 eggs, salt, pepper and paprika.

With these ingredients the stuffing was made as follows.

Soak the bread in cold water, squeeze dry. Heat drippings, add onion, stirring until light brown; add bread, cook while stirring until it leaves skillet clean. Turn into a bowl, add seasonings, butter and well-beaten eggs. If stuffing is too dry, add a little soup stock or water. It should be moist but not wet.

The epicures among the Pilgrims may have ventured a little further and served giblet stuffing. This was made of 1½ cups of bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon chopped celery, 1 teaspoon each chopped onion and parsley, giblets and livers and salt and pepper.

First the giblets and liver of the turkeys were boiled in slightly salted water until well done. Drain and chop fine, or run through a coarse meat grinder. Add the bread crumbs and seasonings. Moisten with water in which giblets were cooked.

In Maryland, Virginia and neighboring States not too far from the sea the turkey was considered at its best when its stuffing contained oysters. The custom still prevails and many a Washington housewife will present the turkey stuffed with oysters.

Oyster Dressing.

2 cups rolled bread crumbs.
¼ cup soft butter
1 pint small oysters
2 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped celery
1 teaspoon minced parsley and salt and pepper.

Drain oysters from liquor. Mix crumbs and butter, add oysters and seasonings. Stir in well-beaten eggs. If stuffing is not moist enough, add a little oyster liquor.

In the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana, where pecans grow in profusion, turkey is served with a pecan stuffing. The rich flavor of the nuts seems to heighten that of the turkey and in "Every Woman's Cook Book" Mrs. Charles F. Moritz, of Montgomery, Ala., has given a nut stuffing that can be used with a sense of authority behind it.

Pecan Nut Stuffing.

1½ cups rolled crackers (not too fine)
2 tablespoons melted butter
¾ cup finely chopped pecans
Soup stock
Salt and pepper

Mix crackers, nuts and butter; add seasoning. Moisten with soup stock. Use for stuffing turkey.

In the Far West sausage stuffing is said to be the vogue. It adds richness to an already rich dish.

Once more Mrs. Moritz in her cook book gives the recipe.

Sausage Stuffing.

1 cup finely chopped sausage
½ cup finely rolled crackers
½ cup soup stock or water
1 egg
1½ tablespoons minced celery
3 tablespoons melted butter
Salt and pepper

Use large or small cooked sausages as convenient. Remove skin, chop fine. Mix butter with crackers, add beaten egg, celery and sausage. Stir in soup stock or water to moisten. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

What Can Be Done About Woman Who Flirts With Every Man She Meets?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Apropos of the subject discussed in your column of November 12, namely, what can be done about the class of girls who make dates with married men and break up homes generally, I would like your opinion on the following problem: I know quite well a married woman who is an unusually attractive, intelligent, even sensible girl, but she has this one idiosyncracy which overshadows all her good qualities—she reacts emotionally to any and every man who appears on the scene and tries to create a responsive reaction to him. Also, it is impossible to talk with her for five minutes without the subject of sex popping into the conversation in some guise.

• • • •

Most of the women in our circle are more or less indifferent to her, although if she were normal she would be particularly sought after. Some, for obvious reasons, actually dislike her. A few, much inferior to her in every way but with the same indiscriminate interest in men, are apparently her friends. But I don't know a single woman who trusts her and trust, I believe, is the only possible basis of friendship. Perhaps she realizes all this and just doesn't care. But what I am sure she doesn't realize is that not only the women, but most of the men as well, regard her with contemptuous amusement, and that her husband is frequently referred to as "poor old Bill." If she could be convinced of this, would it make any difference in her behavior? Or is it just something she can't help? Sincerely,

WONDERING.

Talk to Psychiatrist.

DEAR WONDERING: It is my belief that only a psychiatrist who had talked with the woman you describe could venture a sound opinion as to the cause and possible cure of her so-called idiosyncracy. He would need to determine whether her flirtatious reaction to men is conscious surface play or whether it is dictated by a subconscious inner urge to which she responds without realizing that in doing so she is being conspicuously different from other women. Should she be unhappily aware that her conduct is frowned upon, yet feel powerless to discipline her actions, it is entirely probable that wise scientific counsel might help her to better self-understanding and hence better self-government.

• • • •

If she is indeed an intelligent and even sensible woman she cannot be altogether unaware of her associates' scorn, and the causative factors which motivate her conduct are probably too complex and too obscure to be uprooted by the simple expedient of telling her that she is making herself and her husband ridiculous in the eyes of all their group. Whether she can or cannot help her behavior is for the professional olagnostitian to decide.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Modern Boys Need Warning Against Waste

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

"WHERE is the hammer? I had it in the toolshed yesterday and now it's gone."

Eventually the hammer is found near a building project which 10-year-old Dick is engineering in a remote corner of the place. The saw and plane are with it, all of them rusty from lying out all night.

When Dick came home from school his father showed him the rusty tools. To the boy's surprise he did not storm or bluster. All he said was, "Take the saw and plane to the hardware store, have them cleaned and sharpened, and bring them back. And while you're there, you might watch and see how it's done."

Of course there was no baseball for Dick that day, but his relief at not being scolded was so great that missing his play seemed a trifling thing. And he found the process of sharpening the tools absorbing. He had never before realized what it meant to keep tools in order. He took them and used them—that they must be cared for had not occurred to him.

Children were more careful of tools and implements when they knew more about them and had more to do with them. Today's careless acceptance of articles, which used to cost more and therefore had to last for years, has made for wastefulness.

The work of the world, moreover, is no longer apparent. There is no village blacksmith or local carpenter doing his work before an admiring crowd of small boys. The machinery and processes of modern times are hidden away. Perhaps a little more intimate knowledge of the actual workings of the life about them would be a good thing for the carefree youngsters who today fling about so cavalierly the results of men's labors.

Sports Garments for Men Are Designed for Comfort

THE SMART FLANNEL SPORTS SHIRT. Here is that new sports shirt in dark blue, with long point collar, buttoned by four buttons and loops. It has long sleeves and barrel cuffs, and a shirred back.

Flannel Shirt With Long Sleeves Is Most Important Single Style; Suede Leather Wind Blouse Fashionable for Outdoors.

By Robert Fairchild
(Of Men's Wear Magazine).

THERE WAS AT LEAST one New Year's Eve party last year, the writer will testify, that wound up at a country club, where the men, in tailcoats and top hats, set out to beat their way around a muddy and snow-covered golf course. But for the soberer golfer who likes to keep at the game even when the weather grows chillier, the tailcoat does not constitute correct attire.

The most important single style this fall for cooler weather sportswear is the flannel sports coat with long sleeves and a shirred back, which made its initial appearance at the National Open golf matches. This smart garment closes at the throat by means of four buttons and loops, and the collar has long points. The colors are many, but blues and yellows seem to be preferred. Plaids, too, supplement the solid shades.

Suede Leathers Lead.

Not only for golf, but for hunters, fishermen, hikers and any and all who like to have the brisk breezes of approaching winter stinging their cheeks while they engage in their favorite sport, the wind blouse or wind jacket is an essential. In this type of attire the suede leathers lead all other styles in popularity. Many of the best of these are lined with checked wool.

The backs of these blouses and jackets are shirred and pleated to permit plenty of room and easy movement. Whereas the tendency in suits is away from fancy-back jackets, in these outdoor sports garments, where the pleats and shirrs and gussets serve a utilitarian as well as an esthetic end, they are more popular than they have ever been.

The slide-fastened front continues to have a bit of the edge in its race with the buttoned front. Of course, its advantage lies in the fact that it offers more wind-tightness than do buttons.

As for colors, cocoa brown leads, and a new shade, known as antelope brown, with a much darker cast, is increasing the number of its adherents.

The wool blouses find their high spot in the fleece materials, both solid colors and checked. Here again fancy backs are preferred. One model, however, has raglan shoulders. Since this style gives sufficient roominess and sporty appearance in itself, the back is plain.

Turtle Neck Sweaters.

Among sweaters, the soft-handling cashmere and the shetlands are tops. The cashmeres are usually solid colors—blues, browns, tans, greens, yellows. The shetlands are patterned affairs in the majority of cases.

The turtle-neck style seems to be gaining on the V-opening model. It does indeed seem to offer great possibilities of snugness and warmth.

Woolen socks will be found essential to those braving the autumnal blast.

In shoes, the brown buckskin is still a leader, sharing its position, however, with the smooth-leather golf shoe with heavy sole. Both these shoes are liked in moccasin, wing and plaintip models.

Plenty of Sun During Winter Vital to Health

Artificial Ultraviolet and Irradiated Food Have Beneficial Effect.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SUNLIGHT is a great healer and the summer sun is, of course, more powerful than that which comes to us during the cool and cold months of the year. At the same time we must not minimize the value of winter sun and we should embrace every opportunity for outdoor activities during the cold season.

Some of us have probably stored up a lot of ultraviolet in our tissues because we took advantage of every spare hour in the open during the warm season. We must not assume, however, that we have accumulated so much sunshine that we can rest complacently by the fireside all winter long and maintain mental and physical efficiency.

In a certain sense we may regard sunlight as a food. Every time we eat green vegetables we add to our reserve of sunlight, but even in these circumstances there is something lacking which only the direct rays from Old Sol can supply.

I have a friend—a physician—who has a pronounced tendency to anemia. His duties are arduous, his responsibilities great, and his hours long. He is not able to live in the open as much as he would wish, but compensates, in some measure at least, by the use of an ultraviolet lamp.

During the winter months we can also reinforce the sun's energy within the body through the use of irradiated foods, the discovery of Steenbock of the University of Wisconsin. This process has conferred a breat boon on humanity, particularly in the development of bone in growing children via the food route. Through this means rickets—a distressing disease of infancy and childhood—can be prevented. The reason that cod liver oil and halibut liver oil are so valuable, not only for children but for adults, is because they contain stored up sunlight.

Scoutmasters' Studies Launch Hike Program

Overnight Camping Trips Taken by Many to Gain Credits.

The open road is a constant challenge to District Boy Scouts these late November days.

Many troops in Washington are taking Thanksgiving hikes and these excursions into the great outdoors are becoming traditional.

Numerous scout groups have their own camps. The line of march for hosts of hikers this month will be into nearby Virginia and Maryland.

Training Course Set.

Members of the scoutmastership training course are having the prescribed overnight camping trip the week-end before Thanksgiving at Camp Roosevelt. They will be joined by other scouters who need credit in their training program.

The council training committee will meet with Chairman William T. McClosky at Boy Scout headquarters November 19, where plans for the University of Scouting to be inaugurated in February will be made.

The halls of the Powell Junior High School, Hiatt place and Lamont street northwest, will echo with bugle calls tomorrow evening at the annual bugling contest for District scouts. The best bugler in each division will be selected and then a bugler and an assistant will be selected to represent the council on special occasions.

Maj. James S. Hawley, instructor in life-saving and swimming, announces a new class in merit badge and junior Red Cross life-saving starting Monday at 5:45 p. m. at the boys' Y. M. C. A. pool, 1732 G street northwest.

Commissioners to Meet.

The semimonthly Court of Honor will be held November 23 at the Powell School. The quarterly court of awards is scheduled for December 7 at the same place.

The Council of Sachems, the advisory council of the C. M. O. Honor Tribe of Camp Roosevelt, met Tuesday evening to plan the fall indoor meeting and election of the tribe and also for the Christmas banquet. The election is scheduled for November 30 at the Y. M. C. A. assembly hall and the banquet date was set for December 30.

The monthly meeting of the commissioners of the District of Columbia Council will be held Monday evening at the home of Commissioner Dr. Camp Stanley. Matters to come before the board will be the ten-year program in scouting, the annual council meeting to be held in January and the anniversary week program in observance of the twenty-sixth birthday of the Boy Scouts of America. The anniversary week program this year will have added significance, since it marks the closing of 25 years of scouting and the beginning of another quarter of a century. The theme for anniversary week is "Traditions."

Among the items of troop news for the week was a good illustration of preparedness by Scouts of Troop 20. They were called on at their meeting Friday evening to prepare for and produce a short playlet before a Parent-Teacher Association on the following evening. They did it so well that they have already had requests to repeat.

Troop 43, at the National Memorial Baptist Church, will celebrate its tenth anniversary with a father and son banquet Friday evening. LB. Grening, the Scoutmaster, has been connected with the troop for the full ten years.

Cub Course Mapped.

Troop 52 wil also celebrate with a father and son banquet the same night. Donald Carpenter is the Scoutmaster of this troop which meets at the All Saints Episcopal Church at Chevy Chase Circle.

Troop 14's father and son banquet was held at the Luther Place Memorial Church Wednesday.

Assistant Scoutmaster Roy and four Scouts of Troop 90 qualified as official guides this week and have received their guide neckerchiefs.

New troop papers have been started this week, adding to the long list previously ni existence.

The Cub program for boys 9 to 12 years of age, which was officially inaugurated in 1930, is having a remarkable growth. Twenty-four packs are now registered in the council with a total of 665 members. Many requests have been received for organization of new packs, including Takoma Park, Georgetown, Somerset, Glen Dale and Laurel. A new pack will be registered soon at the National Memorial Baptist Church with F. A. Kurtz as cubmaster. A training course for cub leaders is now in operation at the Boy Scout headquarters Tuesday evenings. The next cub training course will be in connection with the university of scouting and will start the first week of February.

"Transatlantic Tunnel" Hits Peak as Undersea Struggle, Lapses as Love Story

Thrilling Opus Of Sea Fouled By Heart Angle

'Absorbing Submarine Tale Burdened With Weak Love Triangle.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

"TRANSATLANTIC TUNNEL." Gaumont-British production featuring Richard Dix, Helen Vinson, Marge Evans, George Arliss, Walter Huston. Reviewed by Nelson B. Bell.

Those anticipating a Jules Vernish bit of entertainment from "Transatlantic Tunnel," the current opus bringing to the screen at RKO-Keith's Richard Dix, Helen Vinson and Madge Evans, will be disappointed when the story deviates time and time again from a thrilling melodrama of "sand hogs" working under the seas to the ordinary romantic routine of a program picture.

It is rather disconcerting to have one's interest in watching the titanic struggle being waged by those who labor at great risk of life and limb, not to mention the ever present "bends," rudely diverted to the pique of a wife over her engineer husband's failure to be present at a pink tea or dinner party.

Too often this is the case in "Transatlantic Tunnel." As a resut, it becomes neither fish nor fowl and, if designed to please both the romantic shopgirl whose heart palpitates at love problems portrayed on the silver screen, and her boy friend who would rather watch the struggles of big, strong he-men to overcome great obstacles, it fails in its purpose.

When the Gaumont-British Production adheres to a study of the difficulties experienced by the doughty crew seeking to link the United States and the British Isles by an underwater passage, it is of a nature to satisfy even the most rabid admirer of epics of struggle against natural hardships.

When the story deviates from the story of the construction of the undersea passage, it becomes just another love triangle—a love triangle that might be more interesting more engrossing if staged against some background other than the one chosen.

After one's interest is keyed to fever pitch over the efforts of the tunnelers to circumvent the dastardly plans of sinister foreign agents to destroy their labor of love, it is very disconcerting to have that interest suddenly jerked to channels that might better be in another picture.

Then, just as one does become interested in the triangle in which Helen Vinson plays the dark threat, Madge Evans the righteous wife and Richard Dix the man in the middle, attention again is focused abruptly on the work of the diggers beneath the Atlantic.

George Arliss and Walter Huston, two of the screen's most polished actors, are cast in minor roles, probably because of their "program drawing power," as neither contributes a great deal to the picture.

Arliss is seen briefly as the Prime Minister of England. Huston is cast in an equally brief bit as President of these United States. They both wish to see the completion of the tunnel to cement friendship between the two great nations they represent, but Mr. Arliss is not allowed to exercise any of the suave phenagling for which he is noted to achieve his end and neither is Huston allowed to utilize any of the blunt, but honest, methods he usually affects on the screen, to help matters along.

The eighth issue of March of Time, showing Gov. Talmadge of Georgia ending a strike, and introducing the list of those considered eligible to oppose President Roosevelt in the forthcoming election, is a welcome addition to the bill.

The Pathe newsreel, loaded with pictures of war and war threats, rounds out the program.

Paramount's Choice

Paramount Studio's search for the ideal feminine lead to play opposite Gary Cooper in "Peter Ibbetson" was rendered comparatively simple after its decision to go outside of its own lot for the young lady. In beauteous and clever Ann Harding, borrowed from the RKO lot, they found the object of their choice. She constitutes the other half of the unusual love story that comes to the Earle screen tomorrow.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

Piano recital by Norman Frauenheim at the Arts Club. Program: Chaconne in G major (Handel), Sonata in D minor, Op. 31, No. 2 (Beethoven), Des Abends, Vogel als Prophet, Romance in F sharp, Warum Aufschwung (Schumann), Danseuses de Delphes, Des pas sur la neige, Voiles, Le vent dans la plaine, La fille aux cheveux de lin, La danse de Puck, Hommage a S, Pickwick, La terrase des audiences du clair de lune, Minstrels, Canope, Feux d'artifice (Debussy).

A program so individual as this, so well proportioned for its purposes of evocation, so graduated in its transitions from mood to mood, is not commonly heard. Those friends of the artist who gathered last night, despite inclement weather, to hear it were rewarded by musicianly readings sincerely felt and expertly phrased. The event was in the truest sense a recital, a disclosure of the artist's response to the music he handled.

From the sturdy chaconne of Handel, with its abstract patterns serving as a preludal figuration for what was to follow, he passed to that sonata of Beethoven's which marks the subtle change in style which some analysts call the second period in the Bonn master's development. It is one of the three sonatas composed in the summer of 1802 at Heiligenstadt, when Beethoven was hopeful that his encroaching deafness might be cured.

The remarkable first movement with its passages of recitative—a sheer flash of genius lighting up the sonata form—seems to express Beethoven's questionings in this period of dubiety. There is peace in the beautiful adagio, but a peace disturbed now and then by a vague disquiet. The finale, for all its galloping pace, is sensitively poetic and more than a bit wistful.

n the Schumann group was concentrated a potent essence of that dreamy composer's romantic posey. The kinship between Schumann and Chopin is revealed in the evening reverie, in the song of the prophet bird and in the melodic yearning of the F sharp romance.

In the 11 preludes of Debussy were several that are almost strangers to the public, and with them mingled such familiar figures as the rollicking minstrels and the lass with the lint-white hair. One was grateful to hear the mysterious "Canope" and the tribute to Samuel Pickwick, which begins so mock-seriously with "God Save the King."

Mr. Frauenheim was contending against two handicaps—a piano that was none too hospitable to his request for tonal delicacies and the lassitude which follows illness. Despite them, he was eloquent and persuasive, for he was playing with sincerity.

Gary Cooper and Ann Harding make their first appearance as a romantic team in the next screen attraction at the Earle starting tomorrow when Paramount's adaptation of George Du Maurier's immortal classic, "Peter Ibbetson," is presented.

The final choice of these two for the top roles in the film was decided after taking into consideration the fact that Cooper and Miss Harding could be classed as perfect temperamental affinities, according to the studio's press agentry.

"Peter Ibbetson" is directed by Henry Hathaway, who also directed Cooper in his greatest cinema triumph, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer." The cast includes Ida Lupino, John Halliday, Douglas Dumbrille, Virginia Weidler and Dickie Moore.

Taking its place as one of the foremost motion picture productions of this or any other season, "Mutiny on the Bounty" will move into the position of chief attraction at Loew's Palace Theater on the screen for the week beginning tomorrow.

Clark Gable and Charles Laughton, with Franchot Tone leading a supporting cast that includes Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, Spring Byington and others of equal standing, promote an audience interest that cannot be curtailed by the tremendous forcefulness of a narrative that combines dramatic power, high-sea adventure and a degree of love interest that presents the most feminine and masculine interest.

With Gary Cooper, John Halliday and Ann Harding in the leading roles, the play that pointed the way for John Barrymore to assume the role of Hamlet is presented on the screen as the chief feature of the bill announced for the week beginning tomorrow at Warner Brothers' Earle Theater.

"Peter Ibbetson" is one of the most noteworthy productions that has been brought to the screen in recent months. It presents Gary Cooper in the role originally played by John Barrymore and has Ann Harding in the role created by Constance Collier. John Halliday supplants Lionel Barrymore as the secondary source of dramatic interest.

• • • •

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray are the co-stars of "Hands Across the Table," which will be the chief screen feature of the bill opening tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater.

On the stage, the vaudeville bill will be headlined by Bob Hope, whose major claim to fame was predicated upon his funmaking in the stage production of "Roberta." Other acts and Phil Lampkin's music will complete the bill.

• • • •

"The Last Outpost," postponed from last week, takes its place as foremost feature of the bill at Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Claude Rains, Cary Grant and Gertrude Michaels have the most important roles. The bill will be completed by a full news reel and short subjects.

• • • •

Joan Crawford, supported by Brian Aherne in his best picture roles renews the first F street popularity of "I Live My Life" on the screen beginning tomorrow at the Loew's Columbia Theater. A news reel and short subjects will complete the bill.

U.S. to Study Prison Labor In Maryland

Nice Says PIRA Plans Will Be Drawn Saturday.

State Will Co-operate to the Fullest Extent, Governor Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—Maryland will be one of the States in which the new Federal Prison Industries Reorganization Administration will begin its survey of prison labor, Gov. Harry W. Nice said today as he announced that plans for the survey would be drawn at a meeting on Saturday.

The Governor said that at this meeting Judge Joseph N. Ulman, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, chairman of the PIRA, would meet with State officials to outline plans for the Maryland survey.

Meeting Saturday.

In a formal statement Gov. Nice said: "Judge Ulman and the State board of welfare will meet Saturday for a preliminary conference on the situation facing not only Maryland but the entire country as a result of the congressional action dealing with prison industries.

"With Judge Ulman will be the other members of the PIRA, and I have arranged that the meeting shall take place at 10:30 a. m. in the boardroom of the board of welfare. Members of the board, the attorney general, the superintendent of prisons, Maryland prison wardens and myself will be present. I have further assured Judge Ulman that the board of welfare and the prison authorities of Maryland will co-operate to the fullest extent with his administration.

"We are all aware of the seriousness and importance of prison industry reorganization and we are all under the deepest sense of obligation to Judge Ulman and his administration for having selected Maryland as one of the starting points of the great work which can and will be done by the PIRA"

Granted $100,000.

The administration was set up by President Roosevelt on September 26, with an initial grant of $100,000. It was given the duty of drafting a "program of projects with respect to replanning and reorganizing the existing prison industries systems * * * to the end that the industrial operations and activities of such institutions may be so reorganized as to relieve private industry and labor of any undue burden of competition" with prison-made goods, thereby causing the cessation of many prison workshops.

The PIRA is also given power to recommend loans or grants from Federal funds to carry out the program it may develop. Maryland has already asked for $1,750,000 to finish the construction of the new penitentiary at the Roxbury penal farm. This project is expected to supply labor for prisoners, both in constructing the building and quarrying the stone for it.

Gov. Nice to Press 3-Man Parole Board

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (AP).—The bill providing for a three-man parole board will be resubmitted to the Legislature at the next session, Gov. Harry W. Nice said today as he complained the pardoning power was too much responsibility to put on one man.

"Not only is it too great a responsibility, but it is too much power to vest in any individual," the Governor said. He was commenting on a request made by Parole Commissioner W. David Tilghman for more funds for the parole department.

Gov. Nice also said he would increase the allotment to this department in the next budget. The present appropriation, he said, is about equal to what has been allowed in previous years.

Fruit Experts From 4 States Hold Meeting

Three Major Projects Are Listed for Precedence in Experiments.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14.—E. C. Sherwood, West Virginia spray specialist, was chosen general chairman of the annual meeting of horticultural specialists of the four-State belt, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, this week at College Park, Md., with 50 State specialists and U. S. Department of Agriculture agents attending. Edward Gould, of University Experiment Farm, at Kearneysville, was elected secretary. The next annual meeting probably will be held here.

Dr. H. E. Knowlten, horticulture chief at West Virginia University, was elected chairman of the horticulture division, and Dr. L. P. Batjer, of University Experiment Farm, secretary. The conference is divided after its opening sessions into three sections—horticulturists, pathologists and entomologists.

There will be no change in the spray schedule for the four-State apple belt the coming year, according to a decision reached at the meeting.

Three major projects were agreed upon as deserving of general emphasis in experimental work by the States and the Federal department. They are a study of weather and spray injury to fruit and foliage, including spray burn and russeting; more intensive study of root stocks, with especial reference to hardiness and disease resistance and breeding of new varieties of fruit for the Shenandoah-Cumberland area.

Wreckage of School Fire in Which Eight Were Injured

Teacher Hailed As Heroine of Fire in School

Della Jackson, With Ankle Sprined, Laughs Over Blaze Incidents.

By the Associated Press.

Clifton Forge, Va., Nov. 14.—Miss Della Jackson, prety brunette school teacher, today was a heroine of the fire which destroyed the Selma school building here yesterday, causing injury to eight pupils.

Relieved parents acclaimed the coolness she displayed in requiring her 34 fourth-grade pupils to leap from second-story windows of the building after flames had blocked the hallway door.

But the youthful instructor, whose home is at Austinville near Wytheville, saw nothing heroic about her deed and laughed a bit over the lad who tossed his books out before he jumped and the one who hung his toes from a window ledge and had to be pulled back.

Abed with a sprained ankle which she received when she jumped after her pupils, the young woman, who is in her early twenties, told her story of the fire.

Smelled Smoke.

"I was conducting my arithmetic class when I noticed an odor of smoke," she said. "I went to the back of the room, thinking that one of the pupils had lighted a match or that someone was burning brush outside.

"When I returned to the front of the room, one of the children pointed out smoke creeping under the door.

"I was not unduly alarmed nor did I consider the possibility of a fire as we had returned to the building from recess only 15 minutes before. But when I opened the door, clouds of smoke billowed into the room.

"I shouted to Miss Cora Moss, the principal, who was in an adjoining room. She gave the alarm and started the pupils down the stairs. Closing the door, I waited a minute or two to prevent the panic which I felt would come if I showed any excitement.

"When I again opened the door, I was met by a rush of flames and smoke which cut off our only exit.

Closed Door Again.

"I again closed the door to hold back the blaze which was then licking along the floor.

"Calling my students to me, I led them to a window and forced them to leap. It was the only chance to safety.

"At last, I believed that all of the children had escaped. I went back again through the smoke-filled room, calling several times for any child who might still be there. It was so black I could not see my hand before my face.

"Finally, it became impossible to remain in the room any longer and I jumped. I had a hunch, though, that all of the children were not out of the room and I called for help.

Missing Radium Discovered In Trash Can at Virginia U.

Nearly $5,000 Worth, Lost at Hospital While Treating Patient's Eye, Is Found by Means of an Electroscope.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14.—Nearly $5,000 worth of radium, missing since Tuesday night, was located in a trash can at the University of Virginia Hospital yesterday.

The radium had been used in treating a patient's eye. When the bandage was removed the radium was missing.

Seventy-five milligrams—three-fourths of the hospital's supply—were used in the treatment. The capsule containing the radium had been placed in a bandage. It was assumed that it had slipped out.

An order was immediately issued to save all trash, dressings and sweepings and keep trash cans intact. A subsequent search failed, however.

Prof. Llewellyn G. Hoxton, of the school of physics, aided the search yesterday with an electroscope, and indicated the can with the radium.

Police Net Out For Girl of 13, Virginia Youth

Betty Bowman Missing; Believed to Have Eloped With Engineer, 23.

A detailed description of the 13-year-old East Falls Church (Va.) girl, Betty Bowman, who is believed to have eloped with a 23-year-old construction engineer, has been broadcast to police departments by L. P. Daniels, mayor of Falls Church.

The girl disappeared September 12 under circumstances that led authorities to believe she had been accompanied by Richard Henry Weles, of Lyon Village, Va. Welles vanished about the same time.

A reward of $200 has been offered for information leading to the return o Miss Bowman to her mother, Mrs. Kathleen Bowman, and police have been asked to pick up Welles on a charge of "feloniously contributing to the delinquency of a minor child."

The description of Welles stated that "if looking for work would probably apply to engineering and construction companies in South America, as he has so expressed intention."

'Revolving Door' Case Settled Out of Court

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14 (AP). Hagerstown's "revolving door" case—a $25,000 damage action—has been settled.

The case was set for retrial in Alleghany County Circuit Court today but announcement was made of the settlement. Terms of the settlement were not made public.

The case was that in which Margaret Baker sued the Eyerly Department Store of Hagerstown. She contended that as she was leaving the store through a revolving door, a clerk pushed the door violently and it struck and injured her arm.

The action was removed from Washington County and tried here last January. The plaintiff won out and an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals.

The high court reversed the judgment and remanded the case for a new trial here.

Federal Help For Battlefield Park Promised

Committee of 4 Named to Push Shenandoah Valley Project.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 14.—The Federal Government will co-operate with Shenandoah Valley citizens in their efforts to establish a battlefield park area to include the scene of Stonewall Jackson's troops movements, according to information obtained from Malcomb E. Gardiner, representative of the National Park Service.

Several sessions have been held at Harrisonburg and Strasburg by citizens from valley communities, at which preliminary plans have been discussed.

A committee, including Judge John H. Booton, of Luray; R. I. Snapp, sr., of Elkton; Louis Spillman, of Waynesboro, and L. B. Dutrow, of Front Royal, has been appointed to co-operate with a similar committee from Shenandoah Valley, Inc.

Tentative plans call for inclusion of battlefields where strategy was employed in the valley campaigns under Jackson and Early and the Union Gens. Freemont, Shields, Banks and Sheridan.

Baltimorean Kills His Wife And Himself

Fire Shotgun Charges at Woman as Her Son Looks On.

Boy Runs for Help and Police Find Two Bodies in Home.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—Police wrote a verdict of murder and suicide today in the case of Harry Young, 41, shipyard worker, who killed his wife as her son looked on and then killed himself.

The shooting occurred early today in the Young home here. The boy, Alfred Robertson, 17, son of Mrs. Young by a former marriage, ran for police after he saw his mother killed and, when officers arrived, they found both bodies.

A 14-page letter found in the home indicated, police said, that the murder and suicide concluded a second unhappy marriage for Mrs. Young. Previous marriage had ended in divorce after the birth of four children.

Mrs. Young last week filed suit against Young, asking partial divorce. About a month ago he was fined in police court for assaulting her.

Robertson told police that he and his mother went to bed last night before Young returned home. Young, the boy said, was drunk and quarrelsome when he returned several hours later.

The mother took the boy into her bedroom and locked the door. Young unlocked it with another key and came in with a shotgun in his hands. The mother ran from the room and Young fired two shots at her back, the boy said.

Robertson jumped from the bedroom window and ran for help.

Coroner Isaac M. Kelly returned the verdict of murder and suicide.

75,000 to Watch Irish Fight Army Without Pilney.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK Nov. 14.—If one is to believe what one reads in the papers the coaches will be sending up into the press box for substitutes to play in the famous Army-Notre Dame football game which is about to be unveiled in our town before some 75,000 addicts. All the good football players of both teams seem to be injured, which is a pity, because a good swatch of that 75,000 bought their tickets to see the team that licked Ohio State in the last minute of play. That team won't be on the field, and the main spring porbably won't even be in uniform, the same being Andy Pilney, the boy who won the game against Ohio State practically single-handedly—well, not exactly single-handedly, because he did have Mike Layden catching his passes, or pitching them to him.

At that, though many of us will be disappointed, it seems to me that young Pilney is lucky. He won't think so now, because he probably will never play another game for Notre Dame, and that is a heartbreaker when you love football. Pilney is a senior at South Bend, and according to the latest reports his knee injury will keep him out for the rest of the season. Knee injuries are tricky things, and need careful and long rest. Even if he did get back into the game, the first quick turn or twist or tackle would finish him, and perhaps cripple him for life. But the guy certainly went out in a flare of football glory.

Pilney left the hio State game after one of the greatest fighting runs I have ever seen. He started the ball somewhere on his own 40-yard line and he simply HAD to take it into Ohio territory if Notre Dame was to have a chance to win. No man was ever, in any game, at all times so near to disaster and frustration as Pilney was every second of that run.

HE had outstripped his own blockers, who were none too effective, anyway, and every step of the way was fraught with enemy players who were fighting just as desperately to bring him down and preserve that 1-point lead.

I wish I had some record of the number of times that Pilney was nearly stopped on his way down to Ohio's 17-yard line, where he was eventually thrown out of bounds and crippled. There was one time when he was hit, but escaped, and then tripped, and went stumbling forward, on his way to the ground, and yet by some miracle managed to retain his feet and keep on going until he got his balance again, only to be hit and grabbed again. He twisted loose and kept on going in a great individual effort, one man against many.

And so, after his final effort in which he placed Notre Dame in a scoring position, he lay crippled on the ground, unable to arise, but his work was finished. He didn't know at the time that his work for Notre Dame was finished, too.

THE dressing room was too far for hi mto try to hobble, so they sent for a stretcher, and they were carrying him out on that, and he was just about past the goal posts and headed for the exits, when the great roar went up that celebrated Shakespeare's pass to Milner. The job was done.

There is a story—I don't know how true it is, that Joe Byrne was walking out at the head of Pilney's stretcher, and when the touchdown was made he shouted that Notre Dame had won. The story then goes that Pilney never lifted his head from the stretcher, but merely said quietly, "I know." He knew, as a matter of fact before the pass was even on its way. Now, it is pretty tough to top a performance like that. Usually you start on down after something like that, you fumble the ball, or drop the winning pass, or do something to spoil the beauty of a truly heroic gesture. That twisted knee won that boy a memory that will never be in the slightest tarnished.

There is another pretty good ball player on that Notre Dame team, the same being the pride and joy of Staten Island, Master William Valentine Shakespeare, who kicks a ball to break your heart, and isn't bad alugging it. He fired the touchdown pass to Milner, but it was the only really good pass I ever saw him throw. Usually he is in too much of a hurry to get them off, usually fails to reach his man. But he reached that Mr. Milner on the throw that had a whole school riding on it. And that, my dear brothers and sisters, is what they pay off on. You can miss 'em all afternoon, if you'll just plug that bullseye when it counts.

Princeton Firm in Spurning Rose Bowl Game; Cites Policy

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Daily Princetonian, Princeton University undergraduate newspaper, declared today that Princeton would not change its attitude with regards to a postseason game in the Rose Bowl.

In a reply to an appeal by a New York sports columnist (Bill Corum of the Journal) to "reconsider" its attitude toward the intersectional New Year's Day classic, the newspaper, in an editorial, said:

"Princeton is unalterably opposed to considering for a moment an invitation to play in the annual commercial classic.

"If sports writers will take cognizance of this once and for all, they will find themselves free to direct their propaganda some place else rather than toward Princeton and the wearers of the orange and black, where, we assure them, it is wasted."

Professor Durnham N. Dell, chairman of the university council of athletics, refused to comment on the editorial, but referred briefly to the "statement of policy" issued by the university a year ago.

"That statement was," he said, "that 'no post-season contest for the purpose of settling sectional or other championships shall be permitted.'"

This policy is in agreement with a similar one adopted by Yale.

"It should be clearly understood," continued Dell," that the council does not look upon this caluse as an unwelcome restraint upon its freedom of action, but as an expression of policy to which it would adhere of its own free will even if there were no agreement with Yale."

Middies Fear Columbia's Deception

Breaks to Decide Victor in Tomorrow's Game, Hamilton Feels.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 14.—Navy's gridiron warriors, facing their last foe before the traditional feud with Army on November 30, with nine tars still on the casualty list, will be battling hard to overcome a Columbia jinx in Thompson Stadium Saturday as they attempt to hurdle the underrated Lions in their stride for the Cadets.

With injuries spreading a gloom over the Sailors' camp, Navy mentors were fearful of Columbia spreading havoc with a deceptive attack.

"It'll be a tough ball game for us and the breaks will decide who will be the winner. Navy will have to be tops to beat Columbia and at that the breaks will have to come our way," Head Coach Tom Hamilton said.

Outplayed Three Rivals.

The Navy coach pointed out that Columbia outplayed Michigan, Syracuse and Cornell in recent tilts, but due to inexperience and numerous mistakes the New Yorkers were defeated.

"They have a whirlwind aerial offense and a triple threat in Al Barabas, another Cliff Montgomery in the making. Howard Caldwell, our scout, reported that they have a fine football team and there is no telling when they will hit their stride," Hamilton added.

Navy has been unable to beat the Lions on Thompson Stadium, their home field, with Columbia winning all three battles here. In 1900, Columbia won 11 to 0, in 1901, 6 to 5, ad again in 1932, 7 to 6.

In 1933 liff Montgomery, the Lions' triple threat, ran wild against the Gobs for a 14-to-7 triumph. Buzz Borries, who made the lone tar score then, wrote "finis" to Columbia's turf, by the score of 18 to 7, and provided glorious revenge.

Hit By Bad Weather.

Bad weather has kept the Middies from their regular routine work. A scrimmage last night in the rain enabled them to handle a wet pigskin but cut short concentration on accurate tackling, practicing plays and formations.

Today the Middies lined up against Columbia's attack before offensive individual attack. The squad will taper off tomorrow with a light session.

Pratt, Schmidt, King and Chase, the first backfield, and Evans, Manning, Wilsie and Remn, second stringers, worked out in units. A third group, composed of Fellows, Mason, McFarland and Edwards, will act as replacements along with Thomas, Rankin, Ingram, Emerick and Antrim, who splits duties between end and backfield.

It was reported that more than 10,000 tickets already have been sold for the tilt Saturday.

St. John's Sees Victory Over Hopkins

Displays Improvement in Practice for Annual Grid Classic.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 14.—An age-old gridiron series between St. John's College and Johns Hopkins University, bitter rivals since 1885, will be renewed Saturday at Homewood Field, Baltimore, with the Johnnies predicting a victory in their fifty-third football classic.

The Johnnies wear the series crown, with 23 victories, giving them a one-game lead over their ancient foe. Hopkins has registered 22 triumphs, with the remaining seven games deadlocked.

M. Talbott (Tody) Riggs, Johnnie coach, said today, "Our traditional games with Hopkins form one of the longest series in the history of football. It is hard to forecast a victory when two teams get together and fight tooth and nail in their annual grudge battle. It'll be a tough game, but St. Johns will win."

The Bay City eleven has gone through a week of hard drills with the team showing better blocking, tackling and all around improvement. Riggs spent the early part of the week polishing up his offense. Today the locals staged a defensive scrimmage against Hopkins plays for their last hard workout.

St. Johns, victor over the Blue Jays last year by the score of 13 to 7, is the favorite to win this year.

Probable line-ups:

St. John's.	Positions.	Hopkins.

G. W. Is Host To Tulsans Tonight

Wide-Open Battle Seen, With 15,000 Fans Expected.

Leemans-Dennis Duel Is Added Attraction a. Stadium.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE budding rivalry between George Washington and Tulsa will be resumed tonight when they get together at Griffith Stadium for the sixth annual renewal of their series. The kick-off is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock.

A throng of 15,000 fans is expected to see George Washington's new-fangled spread plays matched against the old but reliable unorthodox style of football typical to Tulsa. Verily, it should be one of those wide-open affairs embodying more rugby and basketball than football.

George Washington's offense will not be centered around Tuffy Leemans, for a change. The new spread plays utilize the ball-carrying ability of everybody but the water boy, and the fans can expect anything—possibly even a good old line buck.

All dangerous.

Leemans, however, will figure prominently in the attack, inasmuch as he is quarterback and can carry the ball whenever he feels the urge. Tulsa, too, will have an outstanding runner in "Tack" Dennis, fullback, who is just returning to active duty after an enforced idleness spent in the infirmary. Dennis, and one or two other Tulsa backs, reputedly are as good as Leemans, and if this is true the affair should develop into another "six-shooter" duel.

Red Rathjen, burly center who converted an intercepted pass into a touchdown for G. W. last year, and Capt. Harry Deming, who kicked a field goal for the Colonials' 10 points, will face the Tulsans again tonight for the last time of their college career. Both hope to duplicate last year's performance. George Washington, incidentally, holds only one decision over the Hurricane in five engagements.

Tulsa will rely on its spread plays and the usual speed of its runty backs who are so small they usually get lost in the scramble. Jones, Kahl and McLane round out the starting backfield, and all are typical "scat backs," the most dangerous type.

Probable Line-up.

Tulsa.	Positions.	George Wash.
Hays (75)	L.E.	Yurwitz (45-30)
Chapman (79)	L.T.	Deming (49-78)
Cooper (69)	L.G.	Cott'ham (36-79)

Francis Crimmins, Tech star, makes a valiant bid for a pas sthrown by Stanley Wells on the goal line in the first quarter but the ball, seen almost in his g rasp, was knocked from his hands by Saum (No. 32) at Western. Tech eventually triumphed, 24 to 0.

second when it contributed a gift touchdown to the Maroon. Crimmins kicked off and Niklason, of Western, touched the ball, which rolled over the goal line. No Western man retrieved it and Maurice Schulman, alert Tech center, fell on the ball for the second touchdown.

Crimmins Drives to Score.

It was Crimmins whose crushing drive brought the third one late in the same period. Young Stan Wells, an elusive, fast-stepping quarterback who shared the ball-carrying laurels with Crimmins, returned a Western punt 15 yards to the Western 35. Wells skipped 9 more on the next play and Crimmins plowed to a first down on the 21-yard line. Wells picked up 8 more and Crimmins made it another first down on the 7-yard line. On three more plays Crimmins finally went over, scoring from the 2-yard marker.

Western helped bring about the last touchdown early in the last quarter when Morris Snead fumbled a bad pass from center and a swarm of Tech players recovered the ball on the Western 1-yard line. Wells went over on the first play. Leon Wiseman, Tech guard, attempted to place-kick the goal but failed, as had Crimmins on three previous attempts.

Central, Eastern Will Clash Today

Pearce's Team Favored; Title Hopes at Stake.

With one of the great teams of the school's football history looking on from the sidelines, Central High will attempt to hurdle the last obstacle in its path to the interhigh championship today when it meets an underdog Eastern eleven at Central Stadium. Headed by Coach Mike Kelly and Capt. Morty Wilner, the Central interhigh champs of 1925 will witness the game in a body.

Despite the heavy odds by which Coach Pearce's men are favored to win, Eastern enters the game as dangerous an underdog as ever faced a team presumably bound for the championship. Coach Artie Boyd's team, like Central, has yet to lose an interhigh game, having defeated both Roosevelt and Western.

More or less conceding the power of the Central line as too big an advantage to offset, Eastern is banking on the aerial rout for its interhigh hopes. All week the Lincoln Parkers have been perfecting their passing and perfecting a defense aimed principaly at stopping little Billy Richardson, the high scorer of the series and the spearhead of the Central running attack.

Picturesque Sands Estate Scene of Meeting; Rains Aid Course.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., Nov. 14.—Real racing atmosphere was thrown around the Glenwood race course here today as the final touches were put to the grounds, and stables were made ready for the arival tomorrow of some of the Nation's best steeplechasers to await the barrier rise on Saturday.

Recent rains have made the course soft, and with clearing weather, the going is expected to be good. One would have to go a long way to find a more picturesque course than the one at Glenwood, estate of D. C. Sands, who is the joint master of the Middleburg Hunt. Every fence can be seen by the spectators. The large grandstand, constructed in a natural setting on a hillside, affords a commanding view of the entire course.

Nationally Known Football Authority.

THE University of the South, better known to football enthusiasts as Sewanee, is perched on top of Cumberland Mountain in the southern part of Tennessee, near the Alabama line. From the turn of the century until the early '20s its elevens were among the most feared in the South. Like the feudal barons of old these wearers of the purple came down from their rocky fastness to crush their opponents under humiliating scores.

Isolated in this mountain retreat from the distractions of city life, the boys of the old era did little else but study and play football. In spite of a small enrollment, Sewanee's gridiron record of the past rates equally with almost any other in the land.

For instance, take the performances of the 1899 team, on which those two hard-running backs Seibels and Simkins played so important a part. Believe it or not this outfit won all 12 games on the schedule without allowing any of its opponents except Auburn to score a single point. And against no soft opposition, either. The whitewashed list included such elevens as Georgia, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Texas, Tulane, Louisiana State, Mississippi and North Carolina. However, the football glories of Sewanee are not past.

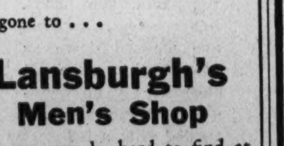

Frank Juhan, who was probably as fine a roving center as the game ever saw, is now Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Florida and a member of the board of regents of Sewanee.

In his history of Southern football, "Fuzzy" Woodruff pronounces Henry Phillips "the greatest football player who ever sank cleated shoes into a chalk line south of the Mason-Dixon line." Not only did he excel at guard, but in a Vanderbilt game he alone carried the ball in short, irresistible plunges 88 yards to a touchdown. His running mate, Ephraim Kirby-Smith, the fourth rived at the right ticket, which involved numbers 9 and 4.

Track conditions were at their worst and some of the slowest time of the racing year was recorded. A crowd of 10,000 was in attendance seeking to warm their hearts by adding to their bank rolls.

The advertised feature race saw the light blue and white of C. V. Whitney victorious in a mile-and-70-yards contest called "The Druid Hill Claiming Stakes." The winner was Piccolo, a son of the famous Whichone, ridden by an apprentice, Charlie Eye. It was a well-earned victory, for Eye brought Piccolo from the last place to first in the final 6 furlongs of the race. The Whitneyite paid $8.40. Captain Jinks was second and Torita was third.

Canpra Returns $89.

Ray Booker, the diminutive colored jockey, gave Canpra a million-dollar ride to bring the son of Canter home in the day's opening race at the excellent mutuel of $89. Aura was second and Mars Pledge third in the field of ten. Canpra did not break well, but Booker hustled him every inch of the way and he worked his way to the top in the stretch to win going away.

In contrast to most of the steeplechases staged here, today's was a very dull affair in which eight horses started and eight horses finished. Postman Home simply ran to the front at once and made every fence a winning one. Jockey H. Little turned in a masterful ride and was drawing in on his mount at the finesh. Blackcock was a much- beaten second, while in the role of favorite, and Matagain accounted for third money. Postman Home was the medium of a $15.70 mutuel.

The combination of Ramus and Jockey Silvio Coucci triumphed in the third race. The rider rated his mount along with the pace of Slave for 6 furlongs and then went to the front, never to be seriously threatened. Pencader and Fogarty closed a lot of ground to get into the money circle. Ramus paid a $7.10 mutuel.

Sparky Victorious.

Sparky and Tight Wad, virtually co-favorites, battled it out in the fourth race and finished in the order named. Both were away slowly and each made a sharp move entering the stretch. However, Sparky had the most closing punch at the weights. Adams Eve was third in the sprint. Sparky paid $5.30.

Jinnee, a graduate of the half-mile tracks, added another purse to his string in the fifth race while under the urging of Jockey Don Meade. Church Call was gradually wearing down the winner at the end but too late to change the result. Naval Cadet was third. The winner paid $10.70.

Zembla won the seventh race with a stretch rush to pay a $5.70 mutuel, and the meeting's finale went to Darkling at $3.80.

Seaford High Eleven Near Delaware Title

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Seaford, Del., Nov. 14.—Seaford High advanced a step nearer the championship for secondary high schools in Delaware when it defeated Georgetown High on the local gridiron, yesterday afternoon, 20 to 2. The locals have not tasted defeat in two years, and their record for this season is five wins and two ties.

Yesterday's game, despite a wet field and slippery ball, was won on forward passes.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANPRA, $89.00, $33.60, $17.90; AURA, $5.80, $4.40; MARS PLEDGE, $6.00.

CANPRA moved up steadily when steered to the outside on the back stretch, gained a forward position approaching the home stretch, swung to the outside to wear down BENGAY and came out slowly at the end. AURA went prominently early, responded when put to a drive and held on willingly. MARS PLEDGE, slow to settle in his stride and taken very wide, moved up stoutly entering the home stretch and finished stoutly. MAUVE DECADE forced a steady pace for seven furlongs, then weakened under a drive. BENGAY was steadied until challenged, then failed to rally. JOAN D. was kept clear throughout but could not menace. COUNTER PASS was always outrun.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Consolation Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:00. Off at 2:01½. Winner, F. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POSTMAN HOME, $15.70, $5.80, $4.10; BLACKCOCK, $2.90, $2.50; MATAGAIN, $3.60.

POSTMAN HOME went into an easy lead soon after start, drew clear after the first mile, then, jumping faultlessly, held his field perfectly safe in the final drive. BLACKCOCK, in hand for the first mile and a half, was shaken up for the closing drive, but could not threaten the winner. MATAGAIN began improving his position after going a mile and continued strongly at the end. QUICK VERDICT raced far back most of the trip and was held safe when put to a drive. LEI moved up strongly going to the eleventh fence, but tired suddenly thereafter. BROMORA weakened badly in the last half mile. Wisner lost his stirrup irons on LIGHTNING ROCK and eased his mount up in the last half mile.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:32. Winner, Ascot Stable's b. g. (a), by Volta—Poppy II. Trained by C. E. Kraft. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25, 0:50 2-5, 1:17 3-5, 1:45 3-5, 2:00 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RAMUS, $7.10, $4.80, $3.20; PENCADER, $8.70, $3.70; FOGARTY, $2.50.

RAMUS, going in vastly improved form and prominent during the early running, wore SLAVE down midway of the final turn, withstood a hard drive willingly and outstayed PENCADER. Latter, a strong factor in the last half mile, continued courageously after making repeated bids. FOGARTY, permitted to race along on his own courage for the first six furlongs, swung wide into the home stretch after moving up stoutly and closed gamely. CAPABLANCA went well placed, but could not improve his position. SLAVE weakened fast when overtaken. FAIR BILLY had no mishaps. HOT GRIDDLE had no excuses.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:02½. Winner, R. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPARKY, $5.30, $2.80, $2.50; TIGHT WAD, $2.80, $2.30; ADAMS EVE, $3.10.

SPARKY went to the leaders with a rush when leaving the back stretch, shook off a bold effort from TIGHT WAD midway of the home stretch and came out nicely when placed to punishment. TIGHT WAD improved his position rapidly in the last half mile, offered a bold challenge when straightened into the home stretch when coming to the outside, but tired and swerved to the inside in the last sixteenth. ADAMS EVE saved ground for the entire trip and was easily best of the others. DIXIE PRINCESS could not stay when caught. BLACK RIBBON weakened after a half mile. WEE PRINCESS did not fancy the footing.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:27½. Winner, G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JINNEE, $10.70, $5.00, $3.10; CHURCH CALL, $5.30, $3.10; NAVAL CADET, $3.40.

JINNEE, going in improved fashion and favored by improved handling, wore SATRAPAL down when leaving the back stretch, and, holding on gamely under a strong drive, outlasted CHURCH CALL. Latter entered contention swiftly when nearing the final turn, joined the winner in the closing furlong and fought it out stubbornly. NAVAL CADET saved ground in the early stages, swung to the outside for the final drive, bumped JIM JOHN at the top of the stretch and continued gamely. JIM JOHN dwelt at the start, dropped back midway of the back stretch, circled his field to reach contention entering the home stretch, but tired after being bumped by NAVAL CADET. SATRAPAL tired. PETEE BLUE raced far below his true form and can do better.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $2,000; added. The Druid Hill Claiming Stakes. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53½. Winner, C. V. Whitney's br. c. (2), by Which One—Picoline. Trained by T. J. Healey. Net value to winner, $2,210; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PICCOLO, $8.40, $3.80, $2.30; CAPTAIN JINKS, $3.30, $2.20; TORITA, $2.10.

PICCOLO, slow to find his best speed and reserved when in stride, secured racing room on the inside entering the stretch, drove to command and held CAPTAIN JINKS safe under pressure. The latter was carried wide at the first turn, went wide thereafter, took a short lead on the final bend but could not withstand the bid of the winner. TORITA had early speed, was given a respite on the back stretch and closed stoutly. WEDGE LAD had good early speed but was bearing out throughout and tired. SHINING SUN flashed early speed but was never a strong contender.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won cleverly; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:21½. Winner, Miss B. Bowman's ch. m. (6), by Vespasian—Odessa. Trained by J. Y. Christmas. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25 2-5, 0:52, 1:18 2-5, 1:47, 2:01.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZEMBLA, $5.70, $3.80, $3.00; APATHY, $5.20, $3.50; BRAW SCOT, $3.00.

ZEMBLA, well ridden, was allowed to race along on her own courage in the early running, swung to the outside when moving into contention, wore APATHY down when reaching the home stretch, and was under pressure at the end. APATHY stalled off repeated efforts from MISS SNOW in the first seven furlongs, saved ground and held on gamely in the closing test. BRAW SCOT went well placed, responded when called on, but could not improve his position. POST BRIGADE could not better his position at any stage. THREE DAGGERS was held safe. MISS SNOW went lame and fell back in the last five-sixteenths.

Five Virginians In Last Home Contest

Three Guards, Two Ends in List as Vavaliers Oppose V. P. I.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Nov. 14.—Five Virginia varsity letter men will be saying farewell to Scott Stadium when they play against V. P. I. in the last home game of the season at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

This quintet of linesman, three guards and two ends, will not lay aside their Orange and Blue uniforms until after they play North Carolina in Chapel Hill on Thanksgiving in the closing contest of the schedule.

Capt. John Leys, Lynchburg, Va., who has twice been awarded all-America nomination for his fine play this fall, and Cullen Wilkin, Salt Lake City, Utah, are the two ends. The guards are Peyton Hoge, Louisville, Ky.; Alfred Seccombe, Cherrydale, Va., and George Seibels, University.

Different Positions.

Strangely enough, four of these five players are winding up their gridiron careers in positions different from those in which they started. Capt. Leys, Wilkin and Secombe all began in the backfield, while Seibels started on end and was shifted into the middle of the line.

This same change holds true for several other Cavaliers who will start against Tech. Steve Davenport, Richmond, Va., was an end on the freshman team last fall, but has been turned into a center, and is now ranked among the best in the State.

Two of Virginia's backs were formerly linemen. A. B. Conner used to play end at the high school in Hampton, Va., while Conrad Ring, Woodstock, Va., was a guard at Massanutten Military Academy and on the first-year team last season.

Virginia Frosh Oppose Young Tarheels Today

University, Va., Nov. 14.—Virginia's first-year gridders have been putting on finishing touches to their two weeks of intensive preparations for their game with the North Carolina freshmen in Scott Stadium at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The Young Cavaliers contest with the Tar Babies will wind up their season. In four previous games they have won from the freshman teams of Washington and Lee, V. P. I. and Maryland, but lost to V. P. I. youngsters, undefeated this fall.

Virginia's Ringmen Add Richmond to Schedule

University, Va., Nov. 14.—The University of Virginia has added the University of Richmond to the 1936 boxing schedule for a match in Richmond on Saturday, February 15, according to announcement by James G. Driver, graduate manager. The schedule:

January 11, Harvard, at home; 18, V. M. I., at home; 25, North Carolina, at home.

February 1, Maryland in College Park; 8, V. P. I., in Blacksburg; 15, Richmond in Richmond; 22, Navy, at home; 28-29, tenth annual Southern Conference championship tournament, at home.

March 27 and 28, N. C. A. A. Olympic tryouts, at home.

Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 14.

Dear Al:

Those who have to depend on other than private autos for transportation to Bowie will have to use the buses. While the B. & O. Railroad will run trains from Baltimore, there will not be that service from Washington. However, all companies have promised sufficient buses to take care of all who desire to reach the nearby course. The daily double at Bowie will close at 12:45 with post time for the first race 1 o'clock. It was at Pimlico that the world record betting for "doubles" was set, $55,110, on Preakness day last spring. The Bowie meeting goes for the next 14 racing days and then it's on to Charles Town for a 12-day session. Bowes Bond claimed the horse Jinnee today for $2,000. He could have taken the same horse at Hagerstown last spring for $700. Bowie will distribute $95,000 in purses and offers six stake races. Virtually every prominent owner in America and Canada will be represented at the track.

BILL.

First race—Absconder won at Pimlico in rather impressive fashion and despite an assignment of 116 pounds, topweight in the race, he seems to hold the edge in this company. Harry Richards is slated to ride. Light and Gilt seem best suited of the others. Clocker Mike favors lookabout.

Second race—Portden won under somewhat similar conditions at Laurel. He will find a track that is to his liking and a boy, in Horn, who knows the shortest way home. Bonanza's victory at Pimlico stamps him as a threat in this field but, like Some Good, may suffer from that 117-pound assignment. Sablin may have to be dealt with here.

Third race—Narise cracked down last out and missed although he ran a nice race to be second. Seems no more stoutly opposed and be a keen stretch factor if not the winner. Atholton is the early speed and may open a long lead. His race behind My Colin was excellent. Grand Knight will appreciate the heavy track and is dangerous.

Fourth race—Manager Bill has had a lot of racing but figures in every race. He shares topweight with Maddest here and I beleive the main division of the purse is in the grip of one of these. U. Demon scored nicely last out and will be in the thick of the battle. Clocker Mike is around with wild tales about Mechanics Gold.

Fifth race—Hindu Queen gets in very light and will have Sammy Renick to do the urging in the stretch. The Vanderbilt filly went well last out. Chatmoss and Fortification are both as fit as hands can make them and deserve attention.

Sixth race—Flying Dere will be favored by the off track and has been improving with each start. Freddie Faust rides at 103 pounds and I look for a successful journey. Merely looms as the one to beat despite the fact that he gives away poundage to most of the field. Flowery Lady to take care of the others.

Seventh race—Politen, should Coucci ride, would be hadr to beat on a heavy track. This fellow has worked well and likes the route. Arab has been closing like the wind in recent efforts and should have something to say about the purse distribution. American Belle for remainder.

Bet bet—Portden.

All-Time Sewanee Stars Are Listed

son of Gen. Edmund Kirby-Smith to play on a Sewanee team, was almost as proficient at lugging the pigskin.

Patton and Murray, though both weighed over 200 pounds, had speed and alertness unusual in tackles of their size. No all-time Purple wingman surpassed Jenks Gillem in getting down field under punts. Besides, his dropkicking ability stole games from Louisiana State and Alabama. The other end, Delmas Gooch, used to slash through enemy interference to tackle his man viciously.

Pint - sized 130 - pound Alvin Browne, speedy and as elusive as an eel in a broken field, rates the quarterback post because of his astute diagnosis of plays over Scarbrough, the Purple's marvelous kicker. Critics declare Aubrey Lanier the equal of Walter Eckersall as a safety man. Lanier had a habit of catching punts while running at full speed, thus giving to his 190 pounds of bone and muscle a terrific momentum which was highly dangerous to the would-be tackler. They labeled Parker "the one man track team." A 200-pound plunging fullback, he could step off the gridiron onto the track and win the shot put, discus and broad jump plus a few other events.

Sewanee's greatest backfield ace, Ormond Simkins, unfortunately died some years ago from the effects of a football injury from which he never recovered after leaving college. A wonderful punter and a hard running ball carrier, he deserves much of the credit for Sewanee's wonder team of 1899.

11 Cadets End Grid Careers At Home

Play Final Game on Alumni Field as V. M. I. Faces Davidson Eleven.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 14.—Eleven V. M. I. football players, including five regulars, will end their gridiron careers as far as Alumni Field is concerned when the Cadets play Davidson here Saturday.

Two lettermen, Dick Dodson and Selden McMillin, will not be able to play on account of old injuries, but Capt. Harry Hightower and Russ Coleman, tackles; Embry Rucker, center, and possibly Bill Oglesby, guard, will be in the starting line-up.

Reserves among the seniors who have seen service this season and may be called on for duty against the Wildcats include Dan Conte, guard; Charlie Banks, tackle; Archie Witt and Marlin Bair, backs, and Al White, who doubles as back and end.

Last Game at Roanoke.

Most of the players mentioned will be called on to help tame the Wildcats as well as to stop Virginia Tech when the Cadets and Gobblers close the season in their annual Thanksgiving Day battle at Roanoke.

None of V. M. I.'s seniors has ever played on a winning team against Davidson, the Wildcats having gone ahead, 9 to 8, in the series with V. M. I. by winning the last four games. Coaches Bill Raftery and Ed Hess expect their players to return to the form that enabled them to play their best game of the season against William and Mary.

Speed in Practice.

Billy Roberson and Wayt Clark, backfield aces, have shown worlds of speed in practice this week and the Roberson-to-Clark passing combination has been clicking nicely. Jim Beard, 180-pound sophomore fullback, also has been traveling at top speed since recovering from an injury in the Virginia game.

First Normal Gain Since 1929 Seen by Ayres

Convincing Upturn Due to Confidence, Says Cleveland Banker.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist, observed today in the Business Bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co. that business experienced this fall a normal seasonal increase in volume for the first time in six years.

He said the "convincing quality" of the improvement is due to "growing confidence" rather than "tentative optimism."

"The crops are better this year," the bulletin said. "Retail trade has improved. There is more construction. Industrial output is advancing. There is an encouraging increase in the volume of railroad freight loadings."

Concerning increased profits in relation to output volume, Col. Ayres said, "Apparently industry and business in general have utilized the long depression period to effect economies and to perfect more efficient methods of operation so that they are now able to utilize relatively small increases in the volume of their operations so as to make them produce much more than corresponding gains in profit margins."

Industrial Recovery.

Industrial corporations, Ayres said, have shown the most consistent recovery as reflected in dividend payments. Industrial recovery, beginning after the 1933 bank holiday, has shown signs of increased acceleration, his monthly review said.

The economist asserted Canada not only had "a more serious problem of unemployment" but has handled it more successfully than this Nation. He said figures "show that in Canada the (employment) recovery so far has made up 48 per cent of the depression losses, while this country has regained 37 per cent of them."

"The still more impressive facts are that Canada has taken care of her depression problem without incurring great additions to her public debt, without accustoming large numbers of her people to rely on national relief payments, and with much less social unrest than we have experienced," Ayres observed.

The bulletin said the durable goods industry has shown sustained employment, pointing out that in periods of depression there is greater idleness among durable goods workers than among those producing nondurable products. Ayres interpreted this as "an important symptom of progress toward recovery."

New York, Nov. 14.—Electric output reached a new high level during the week ended November 9, according to the Edison Electric Institute.

Excess Funds Again Cross Three Billions

Gold Stocks at New High Level With Total of 9.747 Billions.

By the Associated Press.

The weekly statement of Federal Reserve Banks showed yesterday that excess reserves of member banks again passed the $3,000,000,000 mark during the week ended November 13, when an addition of $75,000,000 pushed total balances to $5,746,000,000.

This total, which is $1,639,000,000 over the corresponding date last year, was said by the reserve board to be about $3,050,000,000 above the amount required by law.

Coincidentally, money in circulation which dropped off $8,000,000 during the week, was in exactly the same amount as the reserve balances, namely $5,746,000,000.

Monetary gold stocks increased $33,000,000 during the week, setting another new gold high of $9,747,000,000. The statement said:

"The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended November 13, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, was $2,484,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000, compared with the preceding week and of $15,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1934.

"On November 13 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,492,000,000, an increase of $30,000,000. This increase corresponds with increases of $75,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $10,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and a decrease of $2,000,000 in Treasury and National Bank currency."

The Ticker Tape

Stocks Surge Upward in Year's Most Active Trading; Wheat and Cotton Strong.

By Carlton A. Shively

A Special Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 14.—Finding nearly everything to its liking, the stock market gave one of its huskiest demonstrations of the present movement. New high prices were reached all around the place, and the turnover was unusually large over a broad front. Solid issues for the most part led the way. United States Steel common set a fast pace, and one after another the leading industrial shares followed, including Harvester, General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse, Corn Products and Western Union. Turnover was around 3,750,000 shares, the largest since February 7 of last year. Bonds were firmer. December wheat closed 2 cents higher at 95¼ cents a bushel and cotton was strong.

Railroad stocks came in for more attention than they have had in weeks. The gains in carloadings over a year ago and the optimism currently expressed by railroad presidents, especially those in charge of Western roads, is taking hold of the speculative imagination. Numerous railroad issues rose 1 to 2 points. The best were Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern, Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate, Sante Fe, Delaware & Hudson, New York Central and Norfolk & Western.

Communication shares led the utility group. Telephone reached 150, for the first time in four years. Western Union continued its climb. I. T. T. was active. Consolidated Gas was sluggish. Radio was a feature of both the utility and the amusement groups. All radio issues moved into new high ground. Loew's advanced sharply. RKO came to life.

Drawing Gold.

Following the reduction in the Netherlands Bank's discount rate yesterday from 4 to 3½ per cent, the Bank of France lifted its rate from 3 to 4 per cent. While the matter of gold standards has been settled for a while in Holland (providing no cahnge be made in France), the subject has come up afresh in Paris. Difficulty in forcing enough deflation to stay on gold is the reason why the French Government is now compelled to face the problem anew.

Gold has been flowing out of France in large volume for some time, although real loss has been small until recently, because of receipts and releases from earmark of metal of other countries. With the franc quoted below the price at which gold can be bought in Paris and shipped here at a profit, and nervousness of capital in France increasing, it was time to adopt the traditional methods of allaying fears that the Bank of France was willing to see the country drained from the gold standard, as a preliminary to devaluation of the franc. This week's statement of the Bank of France shows a drop of 667,000,000 francs in gold.

Meanwhile the reported remarks of Joseph Kennedy, lately returned from Europe, made to President Roosevelt today, draw attention to the part foreign capital has played in our stock market uplift. Mr. Kennedy's reported statement that, with the return of better conditions aboard Europe might recall her gold, may be questioned, unless this country desired to see a redistribution of the metal, for the matter is at the discretion of the Treasury. At the same time, Europe certainly could withdraw her capital, to the detriment of our stock market price position.

How considerable this movement has been is shown in the official figures of the Federal Reserve Bank. Since September 1 a total of $545,700,000 has been engaged or imported from abroad. Of that amount, $484,800,000 has arrived. The effect of half a billion in gold on our markets (although some has gone merely to swell bank balances) must have been considerable. "This heavy movement of gold," says the latest Federal Reserve Board Bulletin, "does not reflect an excess of payments due to the United States on ordinary transactions with the world." It is rather a "heavy movement of capital to this country, offset in part by purchases of silver abroad by the United States Treasury."

Just the same, the danger of sudden withdrawal of that much foreign capital appears to be slight. As Mr. Kennedy also remarked, this country is considered abroad as the safest place for investment and as the best chance for speculation on trade recovery, as well as having, after all, one of the safest currencies. Much can happen to change Europe's ideas, and particularly if the war clouds over there would lift a bit; but in the meantime the flow still is heavily into our money and security markets, and it would appear to be a little early to borrow trouble on that score.

Trade Gains.

Undoubtedly the most powerful influence in the stock market this autumn has been the corporation earnings statements for third quarter. They turn out to be on the whole much better than expected, not only compared with a year ago but on progress made since the first of this year. The earning power and dividend-paying ability of many industrial, public utility and even a few railroad companies has not been lost to the owners or managers of large pools of investment money. Investment-trust buying has been considerable, and in its wake speculation also has had a boom remminiscent of old times.

Clearings Gain Here Exceeds Rise for Nation

Local Volume Up 28.6% in Year, Against 23.1% for 22 Cities.

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings for the week ended November 13 at $18,913,556.55, an increase of 28.6 per cent over the same period last year. There was a decrease of $2,459,352.94 or 13 per cent from the previous week.

The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, November 13, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,741,075,000, against $3,860,276,000 a year ago, an increase of 23.1 per cent.

For the preceding week the advance was 20.5 per cent. At New York City clearings were $3,051,728,000, an increase of 25.6 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York City of $1,689,347,000 was 18.2 per cent higher. Philippines Sugar Under Quota Today

Effective with the establishment of the new Commonwealth of the Philippines today, the quantity of sugar which may enter the United States yearly from this area free of duty is limited to 800,000 long tons of raw sugar and 50,000 tons of refined sugar. This limitation is to expire in ten years, when all Philippine sugars imported by the United States become fully dutiable.

Records reveal, according to Lamborn & Co., sugar brokers, that as early as 1795 the Philippines shipped sugar to the United States. In that year the quantity was 132 tons. One hundred years later the exports reached 231,000 tons, of which 66,000 tons came to the United States.

Cotton Exports Rise to Peak For 21 Months

Great Britain Regains Former Rank as Leading Buyer.

By the Associated Press.

A Census Bureau report yesterday showed that cotton exports during October, totaling 711,664 bales, were greater than in any one month since January, 1934, when 739,352 bales were shipped. Exports last month compared to 615,593 bales for the same month last year.

The report also revealed that Great Britain had regained its position as the world's leading buyer of American cotton, a place held in recent months by Japan.

The United Kingdom imported during October 215,095 bales, compared with 68,345 bales during October, 1934, while Japanese imports of American cotton last month were 157,201 bales, compared with 265,071 bales a year ago.

October cotton exports were valued at $45,211,000, compared with $31,390,000 in September and $42,768,000 in October, 1934.

Exports for the three months, August to October, aggregated 1,440,000 bales, valued at $92,814,000, compared with 1,322,000 bales, valued at $91,899,000, for the corresponding three months of 1934.

Stockholders Oppose McCrory Stores Plan

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Henry U. Harris, chairman of the so-called opposition common stockholders protective group in the McCrory Stores Corporation reorganization proceedings, indicated in a statement today that his committee would oppose final adoption of the recapitalization plan approved yesterday by Federal Judge Patterson.

The plan was submitted by the J. L. Merril committee of common stockholders. Harris declared that "the battle is not yet over and that the objective to preserve the earning power of the company for the stockholders still persists."

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Nov. 14 (P) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Sales of wool in Boston were slower than at any time during last week. Prices, however, continued mostly firm. Strong asking prices above what mills were willing to pay were given as one reason for the slower trade. Medium Ohio and similar fleeces moved at 38 cents in the grease for fair amounts and at 38½ cents for small quantities of strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood and 48s, 50s, ¼ blood. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood territory wools moved at 71@75 cents, scoured basis.

France Raises Rate to Check Gold Outflow

4% Replaces 3%; Loss of 667,000,000 Francs in Past Week.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 14.—The Bank of France today raised its discount rate to 4 per cent from 3 per cent.

The rate for security loans was increased to 5 per cent from 4 per cent, and the rate of 30-day loans was raised to 4 per cent from 3 per cent. The action came as Premiere Pierre Laval fought against revived talk on the possibility for devaluation of the franc.

(During the last two weeks, the rates on the foreign exchange markets of the world have moved against the French franc to a point at which it has been profitable to ship gold from France to other financial centers, particularly New York and Amsterdam. The Bank of the Netherlands has so increased its gold reserve at Amsterdam that yesterday it reduced its discount rate to 3½ per cent from 4 per cent.)

Lowered From 6 Per Cent.

The Bank of France discount rate had been 3 per cent since August 8, after it has been gradually lowered from the 6 per cent to which it was was boosted last May to halt speculators' attacks on the franc. These attacks then were draining the gold reserve.

The bank's statement showed withdrawals of 667,000,000 francs worth of gold during the week ending November 8.

The total decrease of gold reserves in the last two weeks has been 835,000,000 francs. However, the gold still held is valued at 71,322,732,303 francs, making the coverage on bank notes in circulation more than 75 per cent. The rate for loans on gold bars was left unchanged at 6 per cent.

Raising the discount rate was described by bankers as a normal reaction to the gold withdrawals which, they said, were continuing this week.

Bank of France Statement.

Paris, Nov. 14 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs: Gold decreased 667,000,000; sight balances abroad unchanged; bills discounted at home decreased 560,000,000; bills bought abroad decreased 5,000,000; advances increased 108,000,000; circulation decreased 761,000,000; current accounts decreased 191,000,000; 30-day loan on government collateral increased 50,000,000. Rate of discount 4 per cent.

New York, Nov. 14.—The 16,599-share increase during October in the short interest on the New York Stock Exchange, raising the total to 930,219 shares, marks the resumption of a trend which was interrupted sharply in September by a decline of 85,000 shares. Federal Reserve Board Expands Weekly Report

Beginning this week the weekly condition statement of reporting member banks, issued by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, will cover reporting banks in 101 leading cities, as it did prior to the banking holiday in 1933, instead of 91 cities as in the recent past. When publication of the statement was resumed following the banking holiday, certain cities were dropped from the published statement temporarily because all or some of the important reporting banks in each of those cities had not then been licensed to resume full banking operations.

The weekly statement has been revised further so as to show additional items which have been reported to the board since September, 1934.

SEC Puts 50 Stock Sellers Out of Business

Commissioners' Docket Has 234 Cases Under Investigation.

The Securities and Exchange Commission docket involving irregularities in stock transactions under the securities exchange act has run up to 234 cases of all kinds, a few of which have reached final disposition.

Fifty firms and individuals have been permanently enjoined from engaging in the securities business directly or indirectly. Six have been temporarily restrained and temporary injunctions have been issued against 90 more.

Orders to show cause have been issued against 44 and 42 others have been named in bills of complaint, not yet acted upon.

In one case a firm was ordered to return all money which it had collected on stock sales.

A number of "tipster" sheets have been put out of business and chain houses out of chain operations.

Three exchanges have been closed, the New York Mining Exchange, the Securities Market of the New York Produce Exchange, and the Boston Curb Exchange.

Notwithstanding this, the commission cannot reach a man who privately sells, say, an oil stock, or shares in a private company, if he does not get across the State line. It might be an interest in a grocery or anything. Men of this type who are frauds can only be reached through the efforts of local district attorneys on complaints by those who have been defrauded.

It is pointed out, however, that there are thousands of better business bureaus and other similar organizations, which are constantly on the alert for this type of swindler.

New York Makes Plans For World Trade Fair

New York, Nov. 14.—Plans for a World Two-Way Trade Fair, to be held in the Port Authority Commerce Building, New York City, during the last two weeks of May, 1936, were announced at a press luncheon at the Pennsylvania Hotel today.

The object of the fair, which has been timed to coincide with National Foreign Trade & Maritime Week and with the national convention of the American Manufacturers Export Association, is to supplement the efforts being made to restore a larger volume of international commerce in a form that will be beneficial to all nations."

Strange As It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

STRANGE as it seems, a ship at sea was actually challenged, boarded and captured as a prize ship by a Zeppelin during the World War. The ship, a Norwegian sailing vessel, the Royal, was overtaken by the Zeppelin L-23 flying low. The dirigible dropped a bomb in front of the vessel and ordered it to heave to. The ship's commander, knowing that his ship was at the mercy of the Zeppelin, obeyed. Then the airship landed on the water, placed a prize crew aboard the Royal and sailed her to Cuxhaven as a captive ship.

Chlorine is a greenish-yellow gas of a disagreeable odor and extremely poisonous when inhaled in any considerable amounts. It came to be well known as a deadly weapon of war during the World War, when opposing armies released it to be carried by the wind over enemy lines.

Yet we could not live without chlorine—for that gas, combined with metallic sodium, is common table salt, or sodium chloride. Salt is a prime necessity of the diet. Chlorine is also used in great quantities to purify water. Many cities have chlorinating plants where a little chlorine is added to the domestic water supply as a purifying agent. Chlorine has also been used experimentally as a remedy for common colds, bronchitis and similar ailments.

There is rain every day, and almost every hour of every day, somewhere on the Island of Dominica in the West Indies. Moisture is carried over the island by warm trade winds and then precipitated as rain when the winds strike cold air rising from the mountains.

On The Air Today

A LARGE number of radio receiving sets still are available from George's Radio Co. at no charge whatever to charitable institutions, hospitals and homes for orphans and the aged. With Christmas not so far away, the spirit of giving will soon be blanketing the city. Why not be a step ahead and suggest now the name of an institution in which a radio set would be appreciated?

"Uncle George" Wasserman is the donor of the sets. Most of them are recent turn-ins on new 1936 models, are in good condition and will be installed within the District free of charge by Mr. Wasserman's service men. Aerials and grounds will be put in when necessary.

Already two dozen or so sets have been installed through "Uncle George's" generosity and many more are available.

* * * *

One of the most recent sets installed was at the Tuberculosis Hospital on Upshur street. Fred Jones, a patient there, has written this desk a letter of appreciation of Mr. Wasserman's generous gift. Through this one set patients in a whole ward are enabled to listen to programs through the use of earphones—which are required as a hospital regulation "after hours."

A short time ago a set was installed for the Christ Child Society in the Childrens' Convalescent Home at Rockville. The Christ Child Settlement House Folks at 608 Massachusetts avenue northeast, heard about the installation—and now a set is to be installed there, too. And the request from the colored ward at the Upshur street hospital, which became lost in some manner, is being filled this week.

Write or telephone the Radio Editor of The Post if you know of a worthy institution in which a set is needed and would be appreciated.
